Marylanders Go to Polls Today in Primaries

Lane, Mahoney Duel In Governor Race; Tydings Seeks 5th Senate Term

Maryland voters will go to the polls today to settle several State primary contests.

At stake at the State level are the Democratic nominations for Governor and United States Senator and the Republican nominations for United States Senator and Attorney General.

There are contests for Democratic nominations in five of Maryland's six Congressional Districts.

In nearby Montgomery and Prince Georges County, heated contests have developed in the races for nomination for county offices.

The Democratic Party has 623,817 eligible to vote in the primaries while Republicans can muster 243,393. There are about 19,000 registered voters who are not eligible to vote in the primaries because they are registered as independents or members of minor parties.

Probably not more than 30 percent of the eligible voters will cast their ballots. That was about the turnout for the 1946 primaries involving a three-cornered race.

The majority of Maryland's 1429 polling places will be open from 7 a. m. to 7 p. m., including those in Montgomery and Prince Georges, but Baltimore's 507 will open at 6 a. m. and in Dorchester and Talbot Counties the polls will open at 8 a. m. All will close at 7 p. m.

Maryland law provides for an electoral vote system in statewide primary elections. Each county gets from 3 to 7 votes in the party convention held after the primary and these votes must be cast for the candidate receiving the highest number of votes in the county.

Maryland has 152 electoral votes, 42 in Baltimore City. A clear majority would be 77 but a plurality only is necessary for victory. In case of an electoral vote tie, the candidate with the largest popular vote wins.

The general elections in November are decided by popular vote only.

Gov. William Preston Lane, jr., 58, candidate for the Democratic nomination to succeed himself, is opposed by George P. Mahoney, 48, a Baltimore contractor who has been feuding with Lane since he was dropped as chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission in

Father Admits He Killed Baby, N. J. Police Say

PATERSON, N. J., Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Police Chief James Walker said today that 22-year-old Fred Goodell broke down under questioning and admitted he killed his six-month-old daughter whom he had reported missing and believed kidnaped.

The unemployed factory worker led police to the foot of Garret Mountain, where the body of tiny Nancy Goodell was found under a rock.

Police said Goodell told them he hit the baby on the head with a wooden tray last Monday, crushing her skull, in exasperation over her crying. Later he hid the body. The mother, Mrs. Marie Goodell, 18, was at work.

Walker said Goodell has been booked on a charge of first-degree murder.

Boat Sold by Post Ad

Mrs. F. H. Richardson was all at sea. Her officer son was shipped out and left her with a 56-pound rubber boat to dispose of.

She solved the problem economically and effectively by placing a classified ad in the Washington Post.

As a result, the boat was sold by 11:30 of the very morning the ad first appeared.

If you have anything to sell, from air conditioner to zither, do as Mrs. Richardson did. Call NAtional 4200 and ask for Classified.

Miss America Here to Sample Politics With Congressmen

YOLANDE BETBEZE
... angel on a moonbeam

Alabama's gift to the other, less fortunate 47 States—Yolande Betbeze, now better known as Miss America—came to town last night.

To listen to her host, Representative Frank Boykin, in whose district she resides and for whom she helped campaign, this was the visit of "a little angel."

"When those Yankees up there in Atlantic City saw her, they thought she was an angel coming down to earth on a moonbeam. They thought she was from heaven. I love those Yankees," the rotund Congressman enthused, as the "little angel" blushed properly.

Today the five-foot-five, 115-pound Miss America will sample political life when she poses with all available members of Congress on the Capitol steps about 1:30 p.m.

How does it feel to be Miss America? "No different," she said.

Any romance brewing? "No special person," with a suggestion of a wink.

How does one get to be a beauty queen? "No special way."

U. S. Plan Set For Sidestep Of U. N. Veto

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (NYHT).—The United States has drafted a three-point plan for reinforcing the United Nations to resist aggression anywhere in the world. It has begun discussions with other delegations on submitting the scheme to the 59-nation U. N. General Assembly, which opens its 1950 session at Flushing Meadow Tuesday.

The plan would:

1. Ask member nations to earmark national armed forces for call by either the Security Council or General Assembly in case of emergencies.

2. Set up an Assembly "peace patrol" of smaller nations, available to fly anywhere in the world to report facts on outbreaks of trouble.

3. Revise the Assembly rules to convene the Assembly in 24 hours or thereabouts in a crisis, instead of waiting for 15 days as present rules require.

The plan, under present thinking, would be outlined by Secretary of State Dean Acheson early in the general debate.

The American moves were confirmed after broad hints in a speech by Assistant Secretary of State John D. Hickerson in charge of U. N. affairs, at the Waldorf-Astoria tonight. He spoke to the American Association for the U. N. and the National Citizens Committee for U. N. Day.

In his speech tonight, Hickerson said:

"We have learned from the Korean experience the complexities of raising a U.N. army quickly and effectively. The Soviets have so far prevented the formation of permanent U.N. military forces, and we may presume that they will continue to do so.

"It is not hard to guess what the Soviet representative on the Security Council would do about sending a U. N. commission to a future troubled area."

Hickerson said the Assembly—where no country has a veto—should be ready to act if the Council could not.

[The Communist New China News Agency said in a dispatch from Peiping that Foreign Minister Chou En-lai informed the U. N. China would consider it "a most unfriendly action" if the Assembly considers items to be submitted by the Nationalists charging Russia with treaty violations and threats to the peace.]

$154 Million Record Budget Asked for D. C.

Heads of Departments Believed Encouraged By Revenue Rise

By Richard L. Lyons
Post Reporter

District department heads, still trying to catch up on a war-shelved construction backlog, yesterday asked for a record high 154.6 million dollars to run the city in fiscal 1952.

Free from any orders to keep requests down and encouraged by higher-than-expected revenues from new taxes, department heads topped their previous high estimate of needs (for fiscal 1949) by nearly 11 millions. The total is more than double the amount appropriated to run the city in fiscal 1946.

The $154,600,326 total released by District Budget Officer Walter L. Fowler is highlighted by a 41-million-dollar capital outlay (construction) program. This is 7½ million dollars more than department heads asked for permanent improvements last year, but 12 million dollars less than they sought for fiscal 1949.

Indications were the Commissioners will cut the capital outlay requests in half.

Said Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young, author in 1946 of what became known as an 11-

GOP Isolationists Barred Stassen, Lucas Asserts

PEORIA, Ill., Sept. 17 (AP).—Senator Lucas (D., Ill.) said today Harold E. Stassen had canceled a speech to Republicans in Chicago Friday night because of pressure by Illinois GOP isolationists.

"I have it on reliable authority that the isolationists in control of the Republican Party in Illinois demanded that he (Stassen) not come because Stassen stands with Vandenberg," Lucas said.

There was no immediate comment by the GOP on Lucas' remarks.

The Senate majority leader, campaigning for re-election, addressed a Democratic rally.

Planning Units Form Area Council

Group Will Try To Coordinate Work Of All Agencies Affecting Region

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Members of Washington area planning commissions who met yesterday to discuss the proposed dispersal of key Federal agencies took a further step and formed a Washington Regional Planning Council.

The new council, composed of members of nearby Maryland and Virginia planning commissions and the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, will try to coordinate the planning of all Government agencies which affect any part of the region.

The action was described by Blair Lee, 3d, vice chairman of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, as "the first faltering step" in the direction of "a real regional planning body with the full force of law under a compact between the States."

The meeting, called by the Upper Montgomery County Planning Commission, headed by Frederick Gutheim, originally was to discuss "Dispersal—Planned or Scattered?" in connection with the President's proposal to scatter several Federal agencies in new sites 30 or more miles outside Washington.

Following an off-the-record meeting with Federal agency officials, the planners, under the chairmanship of Louis Brownlow, former District commissioner, decided they should go beyond the dispersal program.

Under the resolution the council will serve as a forum for discussion and information

An executive committee will be set up of two members named by the Maryland NCPPC, one by the NCPPC, one by the Upper Montgomery County Planning Commission and three by the Northern Virginia Regional Planning Commission.

John Nolen, director of planning for the National Capital Commission, supported the plan with "complete enthusiasm" and invited the new organization to correlate its work with his commission.

Brownlow, who emphasized that the council is open to additional planning commissions in the area, said he hoped it would help iron out differences between local commissions and between local and Federal bodies.

Those present included Fred W. Tuemmler, Maryland NCPPC; Raymond V. Long, Virginia Division of Planning and Economic Development; I. Alvin Pasarew, Maryland State Planning Commission; Tracy B. Auger, General Services Administration; Melvin E. Scheidt, Bureau of the Budget; Louis E. Otts, Interstate Commission on the Potomac Basin; Carl Heiss, and Harold A. Merrill, Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Curbs Placed On Hoarding Of War Items

32 Critical Materials On Inventory List; Installment Controls In Effect Today

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

The National Production Authority yesterday clamped inventory controls, effective today, on business and industry to prevent hoarding of 32 critical war materials.

Householders and other ultimate consumers are not affected by the order, first to be issued by the new agency under the Defense Production Act of 1950. However, another regulation that goes into effect today is designed to prevent consumer overbuying by restricting credit.

This restriction, known as Regulation W and issued by the Federal Reserve Board, limits installment credit on automobiles, household appliances and furniture and rugs. Regulation W requires one third down on automobile purchases, the balance to be paid in 21 months; 15 percent down on household appliances and an 18-month limit and 10 percent down and an 18-month limit on furniture and rugs.

Yesterday's NPA order, while it covers an unexpectedly long list of items, is less strict than inventory controls imposed in World War II. Unlike World War II regulations, it neither sets a definite time nor quantity limit on inventories which may be maintained. Instead, it specifies that business firms must limit themselves to the "practicable minimum working inventory."

National Production Administrator William H. Harrison defined this as the "smallest quantity of material from which a person can reasonably meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his currently scheduled method and rate of operation."

While no reduction is required in current inventories, Harrison warned that the Defense Production Act permitted him to "requisition" excess inventories.

Materials affected by the order are:

1. Building materials, including Portland cement, gypsum board, sheathing and lath.

2. Chemicals, including industrial alcohol, benzine, caustic soda, chlorine, glycerine and soda ash.

3. Forest products, including softwood and hardwood (except hardwood flooring, railroad ties and mine ties), softwood plywood and wood pulp.

4. Iron and steel, including pig iron, grey iron castings, carbon and alloy steel, rough forgings, iron and steel scrap.

5. Nonferrous metals and minerals, including aluminum, columbium, cobalt, copper and scrap containing copper, magnesium, manganese, nickel, tin, tungsten, zinc, nonferrous scrap.

6. Rubber, including natural rubber and latex and all synthetic rubber.

7. Textiles, including burlap.

TV Cameraman Gene Jones Wounded in Inchon Landing

Eugene (Gene) Jones, who left The Washington Post photographic staff to film the Korean war for television, was seriously wounded by shrapnel in the landing at Inchon last Friday.

N.B.C. Television, which employs the Jones boys—Gene and twin brother Charles, the latter a former Times Herald photographer—reported yesterday that Gene was not critically injured. He is in a hospital—probably a hospital ship—"getting the best of care."

Gene and Charlie — combat photographers in the Marines during World War II—tossed a coin to see who would "shoot" the landing operation. Gene won (or lost) the toss.

From all indications, he was in the first wave.

The dare-devil twins thus added another "first" to a long series—but a painful "first".

Gene became the first "strictly television" newsreel photographer, said NBC-TV, to be wounded.

Ambassador Chang Sees Small Support For North Regime

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

South Korea will demand jurisdiction over all the Korean peninsula when the fighting stops, Ambassador John M. Chang of South Korea declared yesterday.

His statement, made before the Junior Bar Conference, took on added meaning with the turn of the tide in the Korean campaign.

In his talk, Ambassador Chang predicted that once free elections are held north of the Thirty-eighth Parallel, only three percent of the people there would choose communism over democracy.

He said that as a result of the invasion of South Korea his countrymen were dying willingly so that "liberty, freedom and decency would not perish from this earth."

He cited the early days of the war when soldiers, with "dynamite tied about them," advanced toward the Russian tanks "and gave their lives to try to stop the monster of brute force."

June 25, 1950 when the "Russian-inspired, Russian-armed and Russian-directed attack was launched," he said, would become one of the most memorable days of history.

French Smash Saigon Red 'Plot,' Over 100 Seized

SAIGON, Indo-China (Monday), Sept. 18 (AP).—French and Viet Namese police have smashed a Communist-led plot to stage a general attack inside Saigon, authoritative sources disclosed today.

The Viet Minh of Ho Chi Minh had planned to employ a battalion of terrorists smuggled into this capital of Viet Nam, these sources said. Police have arrested more than 100 in 48 hours. The attack with grenades and small arms was to have begun at 7 o'clock last night.

Authoritative sources said the terrorists had confessed the entire plot behind the attack

Unconfirmed reports received here last night said a Vietminh attack had been made on French frontier outposts.

Acheson Sees Diplomats on Asian Issues

NEW YORK, Sept. 17 (NYHT).—Secretary of State Dean Acheson tonight opened a series of conferences with Asian diplomats on the Far Eastern situation as the Big Three and Big Twelve remained bogged down over using West German divisions in a unified European peace force.

Before leaving Washington for the Foreign Ministers' meetings, which have been in progress at the Waldorf Astoria for the past week, Acheson announced that he would consult with Asian diplomats in advance of Big Three talks on Asia, scheduled for Monday or Tuesday.

At issue in the Far East is the United States position regarding admission of Communist China to the United Nations, the future of Chinese Nationalist-held Formosa, the Japanese peace treaty, and what to do when United States and United Nations forces reach the thirty-eighth parallel in Korea.

Acheson received Sir Bengal Rau and Brig. Gen. Carlos Romulo, permanent U. N. representatives of India and the Philippine Republic, respectively. At 9:15 a. m. Monday he will confer with Sir Percy Spender, Australian Foreign Minister. He also plans to talk with Zafrulah Ali Khan, Foreign Minister of Pakistan.

Meanwhile, aides to the Big Three and the North Atlantic Big Twelve worked late tonight seeking a formula to make use of West German troops in a combined defense force palatable to French public opinion.

This was the only stumbling block to full agreement on the Western armed force that the United States maintains is urgently and immediately needed to meet the threat of Russian aggression.

The 12-member Council of Foreign Ministers of the North Atlantic treaty organization meets again at 11 a.m. Monday.

There is agreement that the force is necessary, that all Atlantic Pact nations must contribute to it, and that there must be an over-all commander, probably an American. But the French have steadfastly maintained that they cannot agree, even in principle, to reestablishment of German army units, even though they will be kept under Allied command in an over-all force.

Marines Prepare To Bridge River At Seoul; Kimpo Airport Is Taken

TOKYO (Monday), Sept. 18 (AP).—American Marines today closed in on Seoul, 500-year-old Korean capital, after taking Kimpo Airfield 15 miles to the northwest.

They were at the Han river, 7 miles from Seoul. United States combat engineers were trying to throw a bridge across the stream.

Behind the two marine thrusts inland fresh Seventh Infantry Division troops began landing in burned-out Inchon from Japan. They would boost U.N. forces in the solid west coast beachhead to upwards of 40,000.

Down on the southeastern front—150 miles from Seoul—American, British and South Korean infantry vigorously fought 130,000 Reds manning the 125-mile long defense perimeter.

Sporadic Red counterattacks were repulsed by the Allies. There was evidence of Communist withdrawals in some sectors there.

At the same time, units of the U. S. Twenty-fifth Division on the Korean southern front launched a concerted attack in its central sector, a division spokesman said.

The attack was begun shortly after Twenty-fifth Infantrymen had beaten back a Red banzai charge.

The right and left flanks of the Twenty-fifth were advancing against light resistance, the spokesman said. They had covered an average of almost 2 miles yesterday.

AP Correspondent William Jorden reported from United States Eighth Army headquarters in Korea that patrols of the Second Division on the central front had crossed to the west bank of the Naktong River.

Their mission was to establish a bridgehead across the river which has been a defense barrier for weeks.

A second division spokesman said the North Korean Second Division no longer existed as an organized unit on the east side of the Naktong.

The spokesman said the U. S. Second Division had killed or wounded 14,000 North Koreans since it went into action on August 25.

When the Seventh completes its landing operations, U. N. strength in the Inchon beach-

MacArthur, Sure Of Victory, Takes Furniture Along

WITH U. S. FORCES AT INCHON, Sept. 15 (Delayed) (AP).—General MacArthur is so confident of victory that one of the landing ships carries furniture to equip his office and living quarters—presumably in Seoul.

The confidence of MacArthur and his staff is reflected all down the line, even in green units with no combat experience. Combat veterans also are optimistic

The chief concern is not that the Reds will bottle up the landing force. Their fear is that a Chinese Communist army might march into Korea from Manchuria.

It has been reported the Chinese Reds have 80,000 men concentrated along the border facing North Korea, with 200,000 men available throughout the rest of Manchuria.

A speedy end to the war depends, largely on whether American Intelligence has estimated correctly the strength and disposition of Red focres in Korea.

One officer summed it up this way: "If our Intelligence is correct, then we can bust this thing wide open. But if it is not—then we are in deep trouble."

Conferees Reach Agreement

Profits Tax Pledge Ends Block To Action on General Increase

By The Associated Press

A pledge for Congress to take up a retroactive multi-billion-dollar excess war profits tax bill—either later this year or early next year—was agreed upon yesterday by a House-Senate conference committee.

This apparently cleared the way for speedy and final congressional action on the $4,508,000,000 general tax-boosting bill that has been delayed by the excess profits battle.

Following an unusual Sunday session of the conference, Chairman George (D., Ga.) of the Senate Finance Committee announced he had instructed congressional tax experts to begin work immediately on a separate bill to impose an excess profits levy.

This may call for a four billion to six billion-a-year super tax on big profits made since the Korean war began.

The conferees agreed it should be made effective either October 1 or July 1, 1950.

George said the proposal will be ready for Congress to act upon in November, if it is in session then. Otherwise, he told newsmen, Congress will act early in 1951.

Meanwhile, Senators Connally (D., Tex.) and O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) said they will oppose any adjournment of Congress at this time unless there is a distinct understanding that the lawmakers will return to Washington in November to act upon a big profits levy.

While this Congress cannot bind the next one which takes over in January, to do anything, many of the members will be holdovers.

George said he expects the conference committee to complete today the drafting of a compromise on the general tax bill. He predicted the measure will be passed and sent to President Truman later this week.

The bill provides:

1. A $2,700,000,000 increase in the income taxes of over 50 million individuals, effective October 1. For most taxpayers the increase will average about 20 percent.

2. A jump of $1,500,000,000 in the normal corporation income taxes, effective retroactively to apply to one half of 1950 corporation income. The maximum rate would rise from 38 percent to 45.

3. Gathering of more millions through various tax law changes, including the plugging of loopholes that permit some persons and corporations to escape some taxes because of the way they earn or spend their money.

Yanks Up Lead to Full Game; Redskins Defeat Colts, 38-14

The New York Yankees yesterday increased their American League lead over the Detroit Tigers to a full game by splitting a doubleheader with the St. Louis Browns while the Tigers were losing, 3-2, to the Boston Red Sox.

The Yanks lost the first game, 6-5, but Johnny Hopp's pinch-hit home run with the bases loaded in the ninth inning of the second game earned the Bronx Bombers a split, 6-1.

Boston withstood a two-run rally by Detroit in the last inning to climb within 1½ games of New York and ½ game of the Tigers.

The Redskins, winners of all five of their exhibition games, opened the National Football League season with a 38-14 triumph over the Baltimore Colts in Baltimore. Sammy Baugh threw three touchdown passes in leading the Redskin attack.

One of Baugh's aerials was to Rob Goode on a short screen pass that carried 54 yards to a touchdown, Slingin' Sam also hit Hugh Taylor for 31 and 27-yard scoring passes.

In the President's Cup Regatta on the Potomac River, Miss Pepsi smashed all records in winning the historic trophy. Miss Pepsi, owned by the Dossin brothers of Detroit, established three new marks.

10-Foot Seawall Stormed

Marines Seized 3 Key Hills Hour After Assault at Inchon

By Marguerite Higgins
NYHT News Service

WITH THE MARINES AT RED BEACH, Sept. 15 (Delayed).—Marines stormed at sunset over a 10-foot seawall at Inchon and, within an hour, seized three commanding hills.

I was in the fifth wave that hit the Red beach, a rough vertical pile of stones over which the troops had to scramble with improvised landing ladders topped with steel hooks.

Despite deadly pounding from naval guns and airplanes, enough North Koreans remained alive to harrass us with small-arms and mortar fire. They even hurled hand grenades as we crouched in the fire trenches that, fortunately, threaded behind the seawall.

It was far from the "virtually unopposed" landing the troops had hoped for after hearing of the quick capture early this morning of Wolmi Island in an earlier assault. Wolmi stands inside Inchon's harbor, just off Red Beach.

At T-Hour minus 70, confident, joking Marines started climbing down from the transport on cargo nets and dropping into small assault boats.

The channel reverberated with head will be upward of 40,000 men.

For the infantrymen of the Seventh, a division which saw heavy action in the Pacific war, it was a return to a familiar land. The Seventh was on occupation duty in Korea for about two years after World War II.

In World War II, the Seventh now commanded by Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, landed in the Aleutians, on Kwajalein and at Leyte in the Philippines. It ended that war on Okinawa. The fourth American Army division to enter the Korean conflict, the Seventh had been on occupation duty in Japan after leaving Korea.

The Marines rolled into Kimpo, Korea's most important airfield, with powerful new General Patton tanks. After taking Kimpo they jumped off along the west bank of the Han for Seoul, 15 miles to the southeast. The Marines' Pattons smashed six weak counterattacks by tank-led North Korean Reds.

Correspondent Brines said Kimpo fell at 8:05 p. m. last night. This was one hour and 15 minutes earlier than the time given by General MacArthur's Headquarters in Tokyo.

The Headquarters announcement early today said also almost 1000 Red prisoners had been collected by the landing forces fanning out inland from Inchon.

South Korean radio broadcasts attributed to the Korean Republican High Command said United States and South Korean Marines already had fought into Seoul's suburbs Saturday night in a 22-mile advance from the Inchon beachhead which the Allies established in Friday's bold amphibious landings.

Allied Losses 'Minor'

United States Tenth Corps and front dispatches did not confirm this, but painted a picture of rapid advances against a disorganized enemy who was losing his forces in sporadic, piecemeal resistance.

The GHO summary early today said:

"The enemy has not yet recovered sufficient equilibrium from the surprise to organize more than sporadic defenses.

"This lack of coordination is leading to piecemeal destruction of his various increments, with only minor losses of our own."

Where the Han River was reached was not specified. The South Koreans said it was at the southwestern suburb of Yongdungpo, on the main highway from Inchon.

Brines reported Marines driving northeast had overrun Kimpo Airfield, 12 miles northeast of Inchon, with the aid of gunfire from Allied cruisers off the coast 8 miles west of the field and repeated strikes from the air.

The last 2 miles into Kimpo were battered through stubborn resistance, the correspondent related.

American tankmen and Navy fliers were credited with destroying six Red tanks, bringing their two-day total to 16 on the Inchon-Seoul front.

Inside the capital, which the Reds captured June 28 in the first unchecked rush of their surprise invasion, the Seoul radio was inexplicably silent for more than 8 hours Sunday. It finally resumed broadcasting a North Korean communique Sunday night, indicating the station was still in Communist hands.

The communique made no mention of the Allied landings, but spoke only of continuing battles against "counterattacking" Allies on the southeast perimeter.

As the Allied nutcracker operation squeezed harder, it appeared that the bulk of the 130,000 Reds, ringing the 120-mile U.N. beachhead on the southeast tip of Korea, were beginning to pull back. But the seeming general withdrawal was being covered by Red troops holding firm in key defense positions.

By early Monday the rearguard Reds still effectively checked any pursuit by Eighth Army units of North Korean forces already withdrawing.

Reports from AP Correspondents Jack Macbeth, with the United States First Army Corps, and from William Jorden, at Eighth Army Headquarters, gave this picture:

Northwest Front—Ten miles north of the Allied base of Taegu "a solid mass" of withdrawing North Koreans was observed by artillery-spotter pilots. Red troops were moving northwest of the "bowling alley" Taegu-Tabu road. Pilots said the Communist concentration stretched about 2½ miles along the road.

First Cavalry Division foot troops, attacking on the center of the 30-mile northwest front, were stopped for the second straight day with little or no gains.

On the left flank of the First Cavalry an American unit advanced under Red mortar and shell fire within 2½ miles of Waegwan, which is 12 air miles and 17 road miles northwest of Taegu.

On the right flank an American advance was stopped below the walled city of Kasan, 12 miles north of Taegu. U. N. forces skirted the old fortress to the north and drove west toward the Naktong River.

Northeast Front: The first South Korean Division had moved 7 miles in two days to drive into Wangok, about 20 miles northeast of Taegu and only 6 miles south of Kunwi.

South Korean troops of the Eighth Division, driving northeast from Yongchon, and other Republican forces of the First Corps moving northwest from Kyongju finally closed a gap in the Allied lines, punctured two weeks ago in a strong Red attack.

South Korean forces were reported in Angang, 8 miles southwest of Red-held Pohang, but a pocket of Communists held out 6 miles southwest of Angang. Other South Koreans moved in force across the Hyonsang River south of Pohang.

Western (Naktong River) Front: The United States Second Division drove to the east bank of the Naktong for a 12-mile stretch running south to a point about 5 miles southwest of Changnyong.

Heavy rains and solid banks of overcast over much of Korea Sunday hampered but did not halt aerial support. Fifth Air Force pilots reported "the worst flying conditions yet encountered" over the battlefronts.

B-29s Hit Pyongyang

Nevertheless, Air Force fighters and bombers made 339 sorties, while carrier-based fighters and fighter-bombers operating off the west coast were reported sending "hundreds" of sorties against the Inchon-Seoul-Kimpo area in direct support of advancing infantrymen.

The Fifth Air Force anounced its planes made 164 direct support strikes on the battlefront and destroyed or damaged eight Communist gun positions, nine river boats, 4 tanks and 14 trucks.

the ear-splitting boom of warship guns and rockets. Blue, black and orange flame spurted from the beach area and a hugh oil tank belched great black rings over the shore.

Then fire from the big guns lifted and planes that had been circling overhead swooped low to rake their fire deep into the seawall.

The first wave of assault troops was speeding toward the shore by now. It would be H-Hour in two minutes. Suddenly, bright orange tracer bullets spun out from the hill in our direction.

"My God! There are still some left," the commanding officer said. "Everybody get down. Here we go!"

It was H-Hour plus 15 minutes as we sped the last 2000 yards to the beach. About halfway there bright tracers started cutting across the top of our boat. I turned and saw the men around me with expressions contorted with anxiety.

We struck the seawall hard at a place where it had crumbled into a canyon. Bullets were whining persistently, spattering the water.

We clambered over the high, steel sides of the boat, dropped into the water and, taking shelter beside it as long as we could, snaked on our bellies up into the rock-strewn dip in the seawall.

In the sky there was good news. A bright, white star shell from high ground to our left and an amber cluster told us the first wave had taken their initial objective, Observatory Hill.

At first we were pinned down by rifle and automatic weapon fire from another rise on the right. There were 30 Marines and two correspondents crouched in the gouged-out seawall. Then, another assault boat swept up, disgorging about 30 more Marines. This went on for two more waves until our hole was filled and Marines lying on their stomachs were strung out across the top of the wall.

Suddenly, a rush of water spewed up into the dip in the wall and a huge LST (landing ship tank) rushed at us with its great plank door half down. Six more yards and the ship would have crushed 20 men.

Warning shouts sent everyone speeding from the seawall, searching for escape from the LST and cover from the gunfire.

The Marines ducked and zigzagged as they raced across the open field, but enemy bullets caught a good many in the semi-darkness. The wounded were pulled aboard the LSTs, six of which appeared within 65 minutes after H-hour.

In this remarkable amphibious operation, where tides played such an important part, the Marines were completely isolated for four hours. At this time the outrushing tides, which fluctuated 31 feet in 12-hour periods, made mudflats of the approaches to the beach. The LSTs bringing supplies simply settled on the flats, helpless until the morning tides would float them again.

At the battalion command post the news that the British Consulate, Cemetery Hill and Observatory Hill had been taken arrived at about H-hour plus 61 minutes.

North Koreans began giving up by the dozens and we could see them, hands up, marching across open fields toward the LSTs. They were taken charge of with considerable glee by a Korean Marine policeman, Captain Woo, himself a native of Inchon who had made the landing with several squads of men also natives of the city.

Foe Weak, MacArthur Told at Front

INCHON, Sept. 17 (AP).—North Korean troops are handling their tanks and other equipment "very inefficiently," and Communist morale appears "very low," General MacArthur was told today during a battlefront tour of more than three hours.

Marine officers briefed the United Nations Commander and his staff on the situation they found in storming Inchon and advancing on Seoul. These were some of the main points:

1. Communist casualties talled around 1350 during the first two days of fighting. In addition, more than 600 prisoners were taken Friday and Saturday. (A headquarters release early Monday said prisoners taken now approach 1000.)

2. MacArthur asked "What impression do you have of the personnel condition and efficiency of the enemy?"

Field officers replied the North Koreans in the Inchon area were "very inefficient. They are giving up rapidly. The prisoners so far want no part of the war. Morale is very low."

3. There was no indication of enemy artillery. The Communists were using mortars, machine guns, small arms and tanks.

4. MacArthur was told the Reds were using their tanks poorly.

This was substantiated by Col. Ray Murray, a Marine regimental commander who described how a column of Red tanks came around a road bend east of Inchon. "Our tanks hit them before they knew what was happening. Then machine gunners got their infantrymen," Murray said.

5. Briefing officers reported also that about 30 Korean "Rightists" were shot by Communists in Inchon while American troops were making their landing Friday. Evidence is now being gathered of war crimes in the area.

The road MacArthur took toward the front was cluttered with the momentum of war and some of it. tragedies.

Civilians flocked back rapidly to their mud houses on the eastern end of Inchon.

On a hillside a group of Koreans were burying a body beneath a South Korean flag. Nearby Marines fired into a rice field hardly 100 yards from the road.

Farther along the road were 10 destroyed Red tanks. Six still were burning and some had grotesquely shaped corpses slumped over their turrets.

With Marine Corsair planes blasting the Reds on the next hills, MacArthur told Col. Lewis "Chesty" Pullen, of Saluda, Va.: "I think they (the Communists) have scraped the barrel."

MacArthur awarded Silver Stars to Colonels Murray and Pullen and to Brig. Gen. Edward A. Craig, assistant Marine commander, and to two top South Korean officers.

Alexandrian Killed, 3 D. C. GIs Wounded; 1 at Naval Hospital

Sergt. Clark

Corpl. Shackelford

An Alexandria soldier has been killed in action in Korea and three Washington soldiers have been wounded, the Department of Defense announced yesterday.

Pfc. William G. White, 31, son of Mrs. Margaret H. White, 1405 Mt. Vernon ave., Alexandria, has been reported killed. Those wounded: Sergt. Albert John Clark, jr., 22, son of Mrs. Clara Ellen Clark, 3941 Burns pl. se., Corpl. Kenneth Warren Shackelford, 21, husband of Mrs. Wilhelmenia Shackelford, 315 50th st. ne., and Pvt. William G. Brownell, 19, son of Mrs. Eiffie Grace Clark, 1440 E st. se.

Private Brownell, at the Bethesda Naval Hospital only two weeks after a North Korean bullet fractured his left leg below the knee, was a member of the Sixty-fifth Engineer Combat Battalion.

Brownell said he was carrying a Browning automatic rifle in a counterattack against an enemy pocket on a hill when wounded.

He said he saw his assistant platoon sergeant blown up by a mortar shell, his squad leader killed, and his platoon leader wounded in the same action September 1.

Medics dressed his wound almost immediately, Brownell said, and then sent him to a hospital.

The next day Brownell was shipped to Japan, where he was treated for four days before being flown to San Francisco. From there he was flown to Washington.

Brownell joined the Army three years ago. He attended Hine Junior High School and worked in the stock room at Lansburgh & Bros. Department Store before entering the Army.

He has a brother, Frank, 22, and two sisters, Miss June Clark, 12, and Mrs. Charles Perkins, all of the E st. address.

Private First Class White, a native of McKeesport, Pa., joined the Army in 1942. He fought at Anzio, returned to the United States after World War II, then served in the occupation of Trieste two years.

White reported to California July 31 for shipment to Korea. He was killed in action September 3.

In addition to his mother, White is survived by a brother, John F. White, and a sister, Miss Margaret Louise White, both of the Mt. Vernon ave. address, and another sister, Mrs. George A. Bowie, Akron, Ohio.

Sergeant Clark, in the Army since 17, was "slightly injured September 3," according to a telegram received by his mother.

Clark spent 18 months with the Army of Occupation in Germany, served on Guam and Saipan before being discharged last October. He re-enlisted immediately and was stationed at Ft. Lewis, Wash., before going to Korea about July 15. He served with the 38th Infantry Regiment.

Corporal Shackelford was seriously wounded in the legs September 3, according to a telegram received by his wife.

Shackelford, who joined the Army in March, 1948, went to Japan in January with the 159th Field Artillery Battalion. A native of Philadelphia, he attended Armstrong High School here.

Shackelford worked in the Pentagon's cafeteria prior to enlistment. He has two children, Crystal Mae, 3, and Kenneth, jr. 16 months.

Gene Jones Is Wounded

Photographers' contest, Gene took three first prizes in the spot news division—nobody had ever done that before. He took a second prize in the feature division, an honorable mention in spot news.

Gene and Charlie were competitors, since they worked for different newspapers, but they were inseparable on or off the job.

Now and again they would turn in a newspicture to their respective city desks, showing one of the Jones boys assisting the victim of an accident.

Sometimes you couldn't tell from the picture who was where. They pulled the same stunt on at least one TV assignment, producing a memorable picture of Gene helping a wounded GI from the front lines.

Another Korea assignment had one of them in a plane during an air raid while the other was on the ground, as close as possible to the target area.

Charlie's Alone Now

This led the boys' mother, who lives at 5420 Connecticut ave. nw., to say that "the one I really feel sorry for is Charlie.

"He's got to work alone now," she said.

Gene wrote a letter recently to friends on The Washington Post:

"Been on this 'rock' five weeks now. This deal is not much different than the Jap war. (For work at Iwo Jima, the twins received citations.)

"Of course, we are still very much on the losing end now, but things will be rolling soon—we hope. . . ."

And when it started rolling, the Jones boys just had to be there.

Building Sold, Draft Offices Must Move

Selective Service System's national headquarters, now at 1712 G. st. nw., will have to move in the next few months—to a two-story structure formerly used as o women's dormitory at the Langston Stadium housing project.

Selective Service's present building has been purchased by the American Automobile Association.

Officials of the Public Buildings Service of General Services Administration say Selective Service's new quarters will not only be as large as the present one, but may permit all records to be centralized at the site.

The location is north of the National Guard Armory.

Earmarked for Selective Service is an empty structure, known as Midway Hall. A considerable amount of conversion will be needed, although PBS hopes it will be ready in November.

Civilians in Inchon Are Quick to Drop Communist Ideas

INCHON, Korea, Sept. 16 (NYHT) (Delayed).—The port city of Inchon, a metropolis by Korean standards and the first big city recaptured by the Americans, was given the full Communist treatment by its North Korean occupiers.

This ranged from redivision of land to "conversions" by bribes of rice. But communism seems to have taken hold about as much as Buddhism has in the United States.

The thousands of civilians who came out of their cellars after two days of nightmarish bombardment are very hungry and very bewildered. Many rice warehouses were stormed and more than once American Marines had to step into local brawls over grain.

Congress Hopes To End Its Work During the Week

The overtime Eighty-first Congress hopes to unsnarl its last legislative knots this week and go home in time for the weary lawmakers to pitch into the fall election campaign.

Still barring the way are tough fights over the 17-billion-dollar defense appropriation, the $4,508,000,000 tax-hike bill, and drastic Communist-control legislation.

In addition, the Senate still must confirm Gen. George C. Marshall as Secretary of Defense, and ex-Mayor William O'Dwyer of New York, as Ambassador to Mexico. GOP fireworks are expected, but not likely to halt quick approval of both nominations—possibly today.

Congressional leaders are shooting for adjournment Wednesday or Thursday.

Land Cost a Problem For Traffic Planners

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

(Second in a Series.)

One of the toughest problems encountered in building highways, bridges or other road improvements is the high price of land.

As soon as property owners hear the government is interested in building on their land, the price soars. If an impasse is reached in negotiations, the government is forced to embark on the long, drawn-out procedure of condemnation. And often this winds up in an expensive price, anyway.

When taxpayers learn that in many projects—such as expressways—the land cost often mounts up to half the total cost, they realize the importance of acquiring the land as economically as possible.

Leaders of the Regional Highway Planning Survey for Metropolitan Washington are even more aware of the need. Chairman Samuel R. Harrison, Deputy Director of Highways for the District, disclosed yesterday that the present thinking of the officials is for creation of a regional or Federal Authority.

An Immediate Start

This Authority would start immediately to buy up land rights along approved routes and improvements, Harrison explained. Then as the District, Maryland or Virginia decided to go ahead with projects, it would purchase the rights from the Authority.

The hope is that the Authority, by purchasing before actual plans were prepared, would be able to acquire sites at reasonable prices, less than would have to be paid once property-owners felt the situation was theirs.

If a change were made in the planned routes, the Authority would sell the rights of way, Harrison said, and if the projects were long deferred, it could lease the land for various uses—frequently to present occupants.

By and large, the Survey will attempt to plot the improvements on low-cost land, in this way tying in with slum clearance and rehabilitation goals of the area's governmental units.

Harrison, one-time planning director for the city highway department, disclosed a start on joint action in attacking the land-cost problem. He said a meeting is being planned for early October in the office of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to discuss present methods and powers in purchasing rights of way.

Represented at the session will be the highway departments of the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia and planning and zoning groups from the two nearby States.

If created, one of the Authority's early projects would be acquisition of land for a Belt Parkway surrounding Washington's core. This project would be the answer to the question:

What will you do with the thousands of cars brought into Washington by the expressways?

Harrison said the Parkway would be used as a "transfer system," enabling commuting workers to get from one end of the city to another without the irritation and delay of stop and go driving and, more important, without halting the speedy travel of downtown-bound expressway travelers.

Tentative Routes

Tentatively, the belt roadway is planned for the general vicinity of 22nd or 23rd sts. nw., Florida ave. nw., would take in Union Station and the Capitol and then run south somewhere between Independence ave and F st. for the southern segment.

Scattered along the oval roadway would be a series of fringe parking lots linked with the downtown area by express buses. Whether the lots would be operated by the Government, as is done in several large cities, the transit firm or private enterprise has not been discussed.

The creation of the fringe lots for all-day parkers would free the downtown streets for shoppers and other short-time users, permitting them faster movement and more parking space, Harrison pointed out.

Within the belt roadway, all the modern devices for accelerating traffic would be adopted, including one-way streets, wider avenues, elimination of streetcars (replacement by buses), channelization, shrewd timing of lights and placement of signs.

The significance of the last named has already been proved by the survey. In a check last month of users of the Shirley highway, field men discovered many persons turning off at Ridge road had no intention of leaving the highway, but did so because they saw the large sign. The Shirley Highway through sign was smeller and a few feet farther up the road.

As these persons slowed down, uncertain whether to turn, they slowed traffic behind them, and this sometimes resulted in some bumper slamming. Then, when they made the wrong turn and tried to get back on the highway, they would continue to delay other motorists who knew their way.

Let this example however, not be construed as strong criticism of Shirley highway. On the contrary, both the technicians and the survey committee inevitably cite Shirley as an example of the type of expressway which they would make the basic part of the area's new highway plan.

They point out that the average motorist — in rush hours — can drive the 15.9 mile distance from Parkfairfax apartment development to 14th st. and Pennsylvania ave. nw. in 13.8 minutes by using Shirley Highway. A run of 5.2 miles—0.7 mile shorter—from the intersection of North Quincy st. and Lee hwy., Cherrydale, by the fastest route to the same down town point would take 17.3 minutes.

Comparisons between Shirley hwy. points and similar trips on the Maryland side of the river are even more favorable to Shirley. This makes the point that travel time—not mileage — determines how close a person's home is to his work, speaking time-wise.

This preference for expressways is confirmed in the survey's initial study of remedies for the area's traffic problems. The first program under study is the National Capital Park and Planning Commission's, which leans heavily on a series of expressways.

One of the survey specialists, who has studied the New York City-Westchester County road system, is convinced expressways are major aids to proper suburban development. Fred W. Lovejoy of the Bureau of Public Roads said:

"By controlled access and adequate right of way, expressways or freeways tend to stabilize property values and improve the character of the neighborhoods through which they pass."

How to Pay For It?

Later on in the survey, the technicians will look into the inevitable matter of finances. How to pay for all the fancy improvements?

This study will cover present powers of financing, such as bonds, tolls and various taxes, and also new ways. The creation of a unit like the Pennsylvania Turnpike Authority which builds the roads and then leases them out to communities will be considered.

Also, the financial responsibility for the straightening out of the traffic problems of the Federal city and its adjoining area will be dealt with.

Another phase will be the determining of how much any new project would save for motorists through eliminating mileage, travel time and dangerous situations. This will help governmental units "sell" the need for improvements to the electorate. In the District's case, it would be used in an attempt to convince Congress.

Tuesday—The need for continuation of the survey is recognized by the four governmental partners—Virginia, Maryland, District of Columbia and the Bureau of Public Roads.

Rising Prices Cut Real Pay, AFL Charges

HOUSTON, Sept. 17 (NYHT). The AFL executive council warned today that rising prices are eating into take-home pay and said that because of high profits and increased productivity "many" employers can raise wages without boosting prices.

The council noted that second-quarter corporation profits before taxes reached the rate of $31 million yearly, but, the increase in workers' "real" wage in 1950, compared with last year, "was not adequate to keep purchasing power in balance with producing power," it said.

"By fall, workers may expect higher prices for such items as clothing, shoes, tires, gasoline, furniture, fuel oil, coal" it said.

[The AFL, which set out a year ago to add a million new members, reported instead a loss of about 100,000 paid-up unionists, according to the Associated Press.

[The 69-year-old American Federation of Labor gave its total membership in good standing on August 31 as 7,142,603. On the same date of 1949, it had 7,241,290.

[The first real loss of membership since the CIO split nearly 15 years ago was blamed indirectly on the Taft-Hartly Act and fights with "dual unions."]

Denham Not Sore at Truman; Petersen May Get NLRB Post

By the United Press

Robert N. Denham, ousted general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board, said yesterday he bears no grudge against President Truman for firing him from his $15,000-a-year post.

But he indirectly challenged the President's contention his removal was necessary to restore a workable relationship between the five-man NLRB and its semi-independent general counsel's office.

Denham told the United Press that only a few weeks go he submitted a confidential proposal for ironing out the jurisdictional conflict between his office and the board. It involved a voluntary surrender of authority on his part, he said, and "would have straightened out the entire situation."

Appointment Expected Soon

He said the only reply he ever received was President Truman's demand for his resignation.

The White House made public an exchange of letters Saturday in which Denham offered his resignation "in obedience to your wishes," and Mr. Truman accepted it effective at the close of business today.

The Chief Executive is expected to act swiftly in nominating a successor who will work harmoniously with the board in interpreting and enforcing the Taft-Hartley law.

A Senate fight over the nomination is assured. The tenor of this was set by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who charged Mr. Truman ousted Denham as a "pay-off" to the CIO and AFL. Other Republicans wondered if the President didn't make up his mind to fire Denham at a recent closed-door conference with AFL and CIO leaders.

Petersen Mentioned for Post

Denham said he plans to remain here and engage in private law practice, specializing in labor-management cases.

NLRB sources professed ignorance as to his successor. Most prominently named yesterday was Ivar Petersen, former NLRB review division chief now serving as administrative assistant to Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.).

Chairman Paul Herzog and members of the board had a blanket "no comment" for all questions about the long intra-agency feud. They and Denham have been wrangling almost since the Taft-Harley machinery went into effect in 1947.

Connally Urges Delay in Probe of Defense Policies

Chairman Tom Connally (D., Tex.) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee urged Congress yesterday to give incoming Defense Secretary George C. Marshall "time to get his feet under his desk" before it starts investigating defense policies.

He said the five-star general will be able to "take the reins" much faster than any other man—provided House and Senate Committees don't keep him running back and forth to the Capitol.

President Truman, who called Marshall out of retirement to succeed ousted Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, is expected to send the formal nomination to the Senate today. Confirmation was assured when Congress last week passed a special bill waiving, for Marshall only, a ban in the 1947 Unification Law against appointment of a military man to the post.

Friends Say Taft Won't Seek 1952 Presidential Nomination

By The Associated Press

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) has told friends he won't "run" for the 1952 GOP presidential nomination.

The Ohio senator has indicated that even if he wins easily in his Ohio race for the Senate in November, he will not campaign for the presidential nomination as he did unsuccessfully in 1940 and 1948. If his party friends want him for a candidate, the initiative will have to come from them.

Friends say Taft would be satisfied to support some other candidate of like views for the presidential nomination. He has said publicly this is his last campaign for the Senate, since he would be 67 years old if he completes another term.

The trouble with the GOP presidential picture, so far as Taft is concerned, is that he doesn't find many outstanding candidates mentioned who share his views. That is one reason why friends say he doesn't remove himself entirely from presidential speculation.

Taft has talked privately to some colleagues about what he calls the "appeasers" of the Republican Party — those who are willing to go a lot farther along with the Democrats and the Truman Administration than he is. His essentially is a middle-western viewpoint and he often finds himself voting on the opposite side from Republicans who hail from the Atlantic and Pacific seaboards.

Most of the potential 1952 GOP presidential candidates come from the coastal areas and like to be classed as members of the "liberal" wing of the party.

Thus Taft's friends would not be enthusiastic about supporting Gov. Earl Warren of California or Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts for the nomination. Neither would they be likely to join any bandwagon movement for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

[The United Press reported last night that Senator Taft believes home front mobilizer chief W. Stuart Symington "has been taken over by the CIO crowd."

[Symington told a Senate committee last week that sharp price increases. "In effect wage reductions for labor," have been engineered by a few "unpatriotic chiselers." He also said the economic control legislation passed by Congress was cumbersome because it requires a freeze on wages whenever price ceilings are ordered.

[Taft told a reporter before leaving for Ohio to resume his political campaign that the criticism was unjustified, and "the Administration is dominated by the top brass of labor," the U.P. said.]

'Free Algeria' Marchers, French Police Clash

Paris, Sept. 17 (AP).—Demonstrators for a "free Algeria" clashed with police in Paris and Marseille today.

In Paris, one policeman was hurt, and approximately 1000 North Africans were taken to police stations for a check of their identity papers. In Marseille, three policeman and two demonstrators were injured. The demonstrators were connected with the recent seizure by police of the Paris weekly l'Algerie Libre (free Algeria.)

District Asks Record $154 Million Budget

year construction plan to modernize District services:

"In the first place, we don't have that much money. But even if we did, the market can't absorb much more than 20 million dollars worth of construction without pushing up prices."

District Commissioners now face the task of pruning the requests down to the level of anticipated revenue. Fowler gave no indication of revenues expected in fiscal 1952, which starts next July 1. But unless taxes are increased—and both General Young and Fowler indicated there is no thought of asking for more or higher taxes—the Commissioners may slice off about 25 million dollars.

The Commissioners will go over the requests with department heads in meetings starting Tuesday. After that the department estimates will be submitted to a public hearing, then revised by the Commissioners and sent to the Bureau of the Budget. The District budget will go to Congress next January as part of the President's budget message.

Requests of each department will be made public during the next two weeks.

Five departments asked for nearly three fourths of the total capital outlay requests, Fowler said. Schools asked for $9,442,000 to continue a building program. The Highway Department wants $7,050,000 for capital outlay; if this were approved highways would receive an additional three million in Federal aid.

Other departments seeking large amounts for permanent improvements: Washington Aqueduct, $4,430,000; Welfare Department, $4,322,000; Sewer Division, $4,170,000.

Included in the requests for operating expenses is a total of $4,497,940 for 1623 new jobs. The Health Department wants 674 additional employes; Police Department, 330; Schools, 225; Welfare Department, 78.

The total requests add up to $9,904,000 for the water fund, $12,493,046 for the highway fund and $132,203,280 for the general fund which covers all other city costs.

Cuts made by the Commissioners in the past have usually been limited to the general fund. Both the highway and water funds are self-sustaining and their revenues can be used for no other purposes.

The capital outlay requests were split between the three funds this way: $5,936,000 for the water fund; $7,050,000 for the highway fund; $28,075,251 for the general fund.

The capital outlay request for the water includes $3,900,000 that would be borrowed from the Federal Government to help finance the 10-year water expansion program. This amount would not have to be repaid out of 1952 revenues, after Division Superintendent David Auld said.

The District is currently operating under an appropriation of 118 million dollars. Supplementary appropriations may increase this to 122 million dollars before the end of fiscal 1951, Fowler said.

Department heads last fall asked for nearly 139 million dollars. The Commissioners cut this to 119 millions, and Congress lopped off nearly a million more. The 33½ millions asked by department heads for capital outlay for fiscal 1951 was cut ultimately to about 19 million.

In recent years departmental requests have fared this way:

Year	Department Estimate	Commissioners Approved	Congress Approp.
1951	$138,984,400	$119,124,875	$118,049,256
1950	110,188,648	103,321,427	102,764,447
1949	143,886,908	101,464,783	101,823,398
1948	136,108,913	95,082,500	96,436,843
1947	86,800,596	81,505,000	85,739,638

Acheson Opens Talks on Asia

Foreign Ministers of France, United Kingdom and the United States, scheduled for Monday may have to be postponed until Tuesday morning if the 12-member council is unable to complete its deliberations in Monday's session.

Council deputies held two sessions today, working on a communique draft and other matters.

The American delegation passed the day in preparing papers for the final meeting of the Big Three. Their staff discussed internal German occupation problems, including an increase in the West German police force—which is entirely separate from the question of using German troops—with Belgium, Netherlands and Luxembourg and the Big Three themselves will meet with the Benelux ministers before taking a final decision.

Turkey, which has applied for membership in the Atlantic Treaty organization, will be told politely and without prejudice that her application cannot be considered at this time, but that other arrangements have been, and will continue to be, made for joint defense of her security.

The Spanish question, brought up briefly by Portugal, will not be acted upon by the Council or the Big Three, the Ministers being aware that it will arise in the United Nations.

Ex-Generals Give 'Price' Of German Participation

FRANKFURT, Germany, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—German ex-generals, their ears tuned to the Big Three talks on Germany in New York, are busy today hanging out price tags for German participation in West Europe's defense.

Their demands are unofficial. But their uniformity reflects their knowledge that getting any sizeable number of Germans back into the uniform of a West European or any other army is going to be no pushover.

Western Allied sources are convinced that many of the ex-generals' terms will have to be met.

Here are some of their estimates of the price Western Powers will have to pay to obtain German participation in West Europe's defense:

1. "Absolute equality in arms and everything else," in the words of Gen. Kurt von Tippelskirch, one-time commander of German forces in the East. Gen. Hasso von Manteuffel added the demand for "restoration of German sovereignty."

2. "Restoration of the honor of the German soldier." Voiced by Lieut. Gen. Kurt B. von Doering. That demand is almost as universal as the first. Manteuffel and others have clarified it with demands for surrender of war criminals to German jurisdiction.

3. "Reestablishment of the German fatherland as it was in 1939"—Lieut. Gen. Dr. Karl Mauss, last commander of Gen. Erwin Rommel's famed Panzer Divisions.

4. "German generals in command of German units." Most former generals believe German command should extend at least to army corps.

5. "German tactical air support for German ground troops."

6. "Western promise to defend Germany east of the Elbe."

law attain a new stature. The law of the land—the law of the lands of democratic peoples—suddenly became the law of the world. And the international bandit heard on that day his doom pronounced," he said.

Later, the young lawyers here for the American Bar Association convention heard Reginald Heber Smith, director of the ABA's Survey of the Legal Profession, debunk the widespread belief that law is an overcrowded field.

He said official figures showed that during the decade ending 1949, 26,000 fewer lawyers passed bar examinations than in the previous decade. Also, he said that the recent influx of large numbers of young lawyers, caused by GI-law sponsored education, has started to dwindle.

This is in contrast with the greater need for legal services, he said.

In other meetings, Gerald P. Hayes, of Milwaukee, urged Bar Association presidents to do everything possible in teaching confidence in the Nation's courts and institutions.

Services were held for the ABA at National Cathedral, and receptions were given by the Woman's Bar Association and the Junior Bar Conference. There were sessions of various sections and committees and of the American Law Student Association.

At 8:30 tonight, Louis A. Johnson, who recently resigned as Secretary of Defense, will address the ABA at Constitution Hall.

Other Federal officials will hold a symposium on Defense Procurement at the Willard Hotel at 2 p. m. At the same time, Dean Roscoe Pound will deliver an address on "Law in the Service State."

The ABA convention officially gets under way at 10 a. m. today in Constitution Hall when the Assembly meets.

cotton pulp, high-tenacity rayon yarn, nylon staple and nylon filament yarn.

The regulation applies not only to purchases but to sales of the materials listed. That is, not only will the buyer be held responsible for maintaining his inventories within "minimum working" limits, but the seller is required to refrain from selling to hoarders.

Violators are liable to fines up to $10,000, prison sentences up to one year, or both.

Although present overstocks of scarce materials won't be affected for the time being, Harrison ordered businessmen to "cancel, reduce or defer" orders that would bring their inventories above the restricted levels.

In addition, factories whose production is curtailed for any reason, including future NPA controls, must reduce their inventories to conform to the new production rate.

Due allowance is made in the order for special and peculiar trade conditions, such as large seasonal production or inability to buy materials except in large quantities. Delivery of shipments already ordered and in transit or loaded will be permitted, regardless of their effect on inventory.

NEW, MIRACLE ELECTRONIC EAR HIDES DEAFNESS

CHICAGO, (Special)—An amazing new electronic ear which hides deafness and transmits even whispers with startling clarity, has been revealed by a noted Chicago electronic scientist.

He disclosed that this miraculous new discovery has rendered old-style hearing aids obsolete almost overnight, and brings new hope to the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing.

He reported that this electronic ear enables the deaf to hear without any button showing in the ear and without dangling battery wires.

To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with this new miracle electronic ear which hides deafness, full details are described in a fascinating booklet, "New Discoveries to Help the Deaf Hear." It will be sent free in a plain wrapper to anyone who requests it. Address: Electronic Research Director, 1450 West 19th Street, 522-C Beltone Building, Chicago 8, Ill. Unfinished Business

The withdrawal of 11 names from the petition to bring the home rule bill before the House is a cruel blow to the hope for self-government here. Only 13 more signatures were needed to insure action on the bill at the present session. Now the sponsors of home rule will have to obtain 24 additional signatures to save the bill from the ash can to which the House District Committee consigned it. We hope this will not prove impossible, but it is obvious that extraordinary efforts will have to be put forth if the goal is to be reached before the present Congress expires.

All the reasons given by the Representatives who changed their minds seem petty beside the overshadowing fact that this Capital of the world's greatest democratic power is denied any participation in its own government. This is not a new issue thrown at the Congress in the last days of the session. It has been kicking around Capitol Hill for years. Indeed, the Eightieth Congress put a similar bill aside on the ground that it did not have time for adequate discussion. Since then the issue has been thoroughly explored. The community has debated the bill and expressed its approval by the only means available. The measure has been passed by the Senate; it has the support of the President and was written specifically to carry out the platform pledges of the Democratic and Republican Parties. To let it die for want of action by the House would be not only a gross waste of legislative time and effort, but an inexcusable frustration of the national will. The same may be said, of course, of the statehood bills for Alaska and Hawaii.

The chances for any of these bills before Congress takes its long-postponed recess is very slender. But their enactment is of sufficient importance to warrant a post-election session of the present Congress even if there were no other reason for Congress to return. Incidentally, some Congressmen are likely to hear from their constituents regarding these bills. For example, the New York Times asked editorially the other day why 16 Republicans from New York State have failed to sign the District home-rule discharge petition. The issue of "democracy in Washington" has won support in many States because of the gross injustice resulting from the present situation. If Congressmen returning to their home districts to campaign would ask their constituents whether voting rights and home rule should be restored to the Nation's Capital, we should have no doubt as to the outcome.

NLRB General Counsel

Robert N. Denham's resignation as general counsel of the National Labor Relations Board is the only logical outcome of the course he has been following. Over a long period of months he has refused to work with the board. Instead of ironing out problems by the conference method, he has aired his grievances in public. He has deliberately flouted the board's instructions, as when he filed in an NLRB case before the Circuit Court of Appeals in Cincinnati a brief that the board had rejected. While he was supposed to be the law-enforcement officer of the board, he placed himself in the role of chief opponent of various policies the board was trying to carry out. After the board withdrew his control over its Division of Administration, he ordered two lawyers assigned to the board to return to his office, and they refused. Such bickering and obstruction are obviously intolerable. The astonishing thing is that the President permitted the work of the NLRB to be disrupted in this fashion for so long when it has been unmistakably clear that Mr. Denham would have to be ousted in the end.

The President's preference, of course, was to end the row by reorganizing the NLRB. This he attempted to do last spring with his Reorganization Plan No. 12, which would have abolished the independent office of general counsel and transferred its functions to the board. We thought the Senate was misguided to reject the plan. In any event, it should now be recognized that the Senate's action forced the President to choose between dismissing Mr. Denham and letting the work of the NLRB go to pot. Undoubtedly he has chosen the right course, but the need for reorganization still exists, and there is danger of repeating the history of the last three years if the new general counsel remains a law unto himself.

For this reason it is especially urgent to choose as Mr. Denham's successor a man of judgment, experience and capacity to work with other people. The new general counsel will have the enormous responsibility of investigating charges of unfair labor practices and of filing and prosecuting all complaints before the board. Because of his political tie with organized labor, the President will be under strong pressure to appoint a prolabor man, but that pressure ought to be resisted. The general counsel will have to handle cases against unions as well as employers. To do his work properly and hold the confidence of the country he must obviously be an impartial public servant primarily interested in enforcing the law. Any nomination that might be interpreted as an attempt to undercut the Taft-Hartley Act, which Congress has refused to repeal, would be widely resented and would probably be rejected by the Senate. The place calls for a fair-minded lawyer of sufficient stature to make important decisions and of sufficient flexibility to work with the board toward constructive results.

The Grand Gamble

At this time one big question frustrates every effort to appraise the radical alteration of the Korean war as the result of the sensational and successful invasion and flanking attack by the United Nations forces at Inchon. The question is simply what Moscow intends to do about it. Has it the influence to persuade its ally, Mao Tze-tung to send some of his armies to the support of the North Korean Communists? Will the Kremlin throw any of its own Siberian forces into the struggle? Will it attempt a diversion in some other part of the world, such as Indo-China, Iran, Germany or Yugoslavia? Any one of these courses would have immense and immediate international repercussions, and might swiftly involve the Soviet Union and the rest of the world in a general war that could have no other issue than the total destruction or total triumph of Communist power. Thus it is obvious that the destinies of everyone now living, and of those yet to be born, hang upon the answer to the question.

The possibility of Chinese or Russian intervention was the largest of several large risks involved in the invasion of Inchon. The general military purpose of the invasion is quite apparent. It is a pincers movement designed to trap and to crush the North Korean armies between the invading forces in the north and those which are concentrated at the southeastern tip of the peninsula.

So far it has been brilliantly executed. The invading forces are reported to be nearing Seoul, the capital, and to have seized the vitally important airport of Kimpo nearby. The Communist resistance appears to have been weak and ineffectual; and the report that nearly a thousand Communist prisoners have already been taken in the operations around Inchon indicates a considerable demoralization among the enemy.

On the southern fronts a general offensive by the Allied forces was synchronized with the Inchon invasions. It is encountering stubborn resistance. The resistance, however, appears to be from rear-guard elements who are covering a general retreat of the North Korean forces. The obvious purpose of the United Nations command is to effect a junction of the Allied troops pushing southward from the vicinity of Seoul with the forces now attempting to drive northward along the two main highroads. One of these, leading northwest from Taegu, follows the valley of the Han River; the other, or western route, leads north through Kwanju, Zenshu, and Sumon. Between the two prongs of the pincers lies the great bulk of the North Korean armies.

Whether the junction, if effected, will result in the destruction of the North Korean armies is something that seems to depend upon the enemy's morale. A way of escape and of retreat beyond the thirty-eighth parallel for part of the enemy forces may remain open to him through mountain passes to the eastern coastal roads. Thus—leaving aside the possibility of Chinese or Russian intervention—it is still unsafe to predict an early liquidation of the war.

A movement of troops from Manchuria into Korea, of course, would completely reverse this picture. Then the position of the United Nations forces would be even more precarious than that now occupied by the North Korean forces. Such is the great gamble of the Inchon adventure. It remains to be seen whether Peking or the Kremlin will dare to raise the stakes.

Fight On Profiteers

"Hog Profiteering" is the epithet hurled by Stuart Symington, head of the National Security Resources Board, at the speculators who have bought up huge supplies of strategic defense materials. Protective inventory hoarding by manufacturers has also boosted prices and created artificial scarcities of materials needed by the Government for stock-piling and manufacture of arms and equipment. Whatever the motives of the hoarders, prompt action is required to put a stop to practices that, as Mr. Symington states, are doing serious damage to the national economy and the rearmament program.

Fortunately for the country, the Defense Production Act prohibits excessive accumulation of scarce materials for business use, home consumption, or resale at higher than prevailing market prices. Convicted hoarders may be fined or imprisoned. The Government is also empowered to requisition materials and facilities required for national defense, if they cannot be obtained otherwise on fair and reasonable terms.

An anti-hoarding order has already been issued by the new National Production Authority listing scarce materials and limiting the amount of them that may be held by business firms. The order to speed up production of synthetic rubber by Government-owned plants will also release more natural rubber for defense use. However, our dependence on imports of crude rubber precludes effective control over rubber prices. The failure of the Munitions Board to build up its stockpile of rubber has come in for sharp and deserved criticism. Members of the board have been summoned to explain to the Senate Committee on Military Preparedness why it cut back its stockpiling a few months ago when prices were at reasonable levels.

If a few big-time commodity speculators are chiefly responsible for the speculative price boom, as contended, the antihoarding decree, coupled with Mr. Symington's threat to seize hoarded goods and publish the names of the hoarders, ought to be an effective check on further price increases. Otherwise, selective price controls will be a last resort. Under the Defense Production Act increases in wages are prohibited in industries put under price ceilings, if such increases would require an increase in those price ceilings or impose hardships on the seller of controlled goods. That vague and hampering restriction naturally makes the Administration reluctant to experiment with selective price controls; but Mr. Symington has promised to invoke them, if necessary.

If selective controls were to be applied only to scarce materials exorbitantly priced because of speculation and hoarding, we see no reason why wages would have to be frozen to avoid possible hardships. On the contrary, any action taken to reduce or prevent increases in prices of industrial raw materials brought about by profiteering will deprive the conscienceless of ill-gotten gains, hold down industrial production costs and check advances in general living costs.

Notorious Senator

Senator Taft is a notorious person, as he himself observed some time ago when 100 power plant workers at a Youngstown, Ohio, steel plant walked off the job and constituted themselves a picket line to boo him after it was announced that he was going to be conducted through the plant. "Even most of the pickets . . . seemed glad to meet a notorious person," said the Senator.

The notoriety, of course, has a definite value in the Senator's campaign for reelection this fall, in that Ohio is using the Massachusetts, or office-type, of ballot for the first time. That ballot inherently benefits the candidate with better known name, whether the name itself is favorably or unfavorably regarded. It is thus an ironic fact that the unmannerly pickets, whose walkout suspended the jobs of 1500 other workers, probably benefited the Senator more than they injured him, a circumstance that has occurred rather often in the Senator's career. The walkout also angered nonextremists, and this benefited the Senator, too.

However, the incident illustrated afresh how long a road has been traveled since the days when Mark Hanna had his McKinley literature distributed in almost every industrial plant in the country through the cooperation of the owners and managers. Nowadays a political candidate approaches an industrial plant with the greatest caution, even if the way has been paved for his visit. And this is probably as it should be.

Housewives' Hazards

Despite the constantly quoted axiom, "a woman's work is never done," housewives have never been able to make other people, especially husbands, believe they don't have it "pretty easy." But now the Sixth Congress of the Medical Women's International Association, meeting in Philadelphia, has in a measure vindicated them. The American homemaker, it was brought out, has many occupational hazards. She works in one of the most dangerous of all places from the standpoint of accidents. She frequently becomes overweight from tasting and nibbling—back of which may lie unhappiness. She is also particularly susceptible to psychosomatic illness. So important were the special illnesses and hygiene of housework deemed by the congress that an entire session was given to their discussion, with reports from women physicians all over the world.

However, the results of this session also showed that the American homemaker was lucky compared with housewives in other countries. She has an abundance of food and doesn't have to stand in line for it. She generally has better working quarters and equipment than women elsewhere. And the man she marries seldom if ever asks in courtship how well she can cook, run a home, rear children . . . One wonders if some of her occupational hazards might be lightened if he did.

MIDWEST TWILIGHT

High in the west, above thunderheads,
The evening star in veils of cloud looks earthward.
The summer night deepens. The nine o'clock twilight passes.
Vega goes under in mist, and Arcturus
Falters and perishes. Smoke lies low in the valleys,
And trees stand hushed in the windless advent of darkness.
Westward, the heralds of storm mount slowly. At midnight
A rushing of wind and a singing of rain will go over,
And we shall awake in the thunderous dark and remember
People long lost, who like us in the night may be lying Under roofs loud with rain, or under the earth, unhearing.

Gallup On Spain

With elections in the offing, it seems time to ask Dr. George Gallup to hew closer to the line.

Gallup's column dated September 12, headlined "Closer Relations with Spain Favored by Growing Numbers," seems to me a case in point. Under the question of United States aid to Spain, Gallup shows two columns of figures representing "public opinion." These indicate that 57 percent of all voters favor such aid and that 58 percent of informed voters do likewise. In the seventh paragraph of the accompanying text, Dr. Gallup indicates that only 56 percent of those questioned passed the test of informed voters. This test consisted of the question, "With what country do you associate General Franco?"

It seems to me that there is very little point, except in a study of political ignorance, to represent as "public opinion" the thinking of persons unable to identify Franco with Spain. It seems to me that a figure which is really significant has to be derived indirectly from Gallup's figures. The hard core of his column is that 58 percent of 56 percent of those interviewed are informed and favor aid to Spain. This comes down to about 32 percent of the "population."

Now it may be argued that even uninformed voter opinion is of consequence. And so there may be no objection to representing in the tabulation the opinion of all voters—even including those unable to identify Franco with Spain. However, I question placing the opinion of informed voters alongside this first figure without indicating in the tabulation, rather than in the text, that a very much smaller population base is involved. I believe it would have been far more satisfactory to list first the percentage of all voters favoring aid to Spain, and second, the percentage of all voters informed and favoring such aid. This would have resulted in the two figures 57 percent and 32 percent right up in the table where people could get the whole picture.

Another comment might be directed at the broad headline given this release, "Closer Relations With Spain Favored By Growing Numbers." A reading of the column shows only one figure given to represent the level of opinion in the past on this subject. Informed voters in May 1949 were evenly split on Spanish membership in the Atlantic Pact. Now the present article represents four measures of opinion on relations with Spain: the opinions of all voters and of informed voters on the Pact membership question and both again on the aid question. How did the other three measures of opinion stack up in May 1949? Is the headline based on only one element available at both times of comparison, or one element convenient? Should the comparison have been made if only one was available or convenient? And, especially, should it have been made in a headline?

And just a last comment on the propriety of including in such a survey "voters" who cannot identify Franco with Spain: Do such incurious and unconcerned citizens actually vote?

Meaning Of "Gook"

A recent letter in this column concerning a quotation from the Manchester Guardian in your editorial of September 9, which stated that "nobody seems to know the origin of the word (i.e., gook)," offers a plausible etymology of the word, but goes on to say that the use of "wog" by the British in India and elsewhere in the Empire is short for "pollywog," a term explained by the natives' predilection for intensified breeding.

Mr. Negley Farson in his excellent and authoritative book on Africa, Behind God's Back, published in 1941 (Mr. Farson has more recently written "Last Chance in Africa," an intelligent and impartial survey of British colonial policy in Kenya) discusses the Hindu problem in Africa at some length, and in the course of the discourse casually states that "wog" means "wily Oriental gentleman," and that it is a word not unknown among the British in India.

Incidentally, its use seems to have originally represented a reluctant admiration on the part of the British for the acute business acumen of the Asiatic, rather than as a purely derogatory epithet.

"Early's Departure"

Your editorials are my main source of inspiration in my constant effort to keep abreast of things public in these parlous times.

However, your short article on "Early's Departure" in paper of September 13 came as news to me that Mr. Early's disposition could be properly classified as "splenetic." I do not have the honor of Mr. Early's acquaintance, but from what I learn from the newspaper boys who have been in contact with him, he is anything but "depressed, melancholy, malicious, spiteful, ill-humored and peevish," as Webster defines the word. Would not the adjective "splenitive" have been more appriate? Webster defines this as "fiery; impetuous and passionate." Certainly, even your own eulogistic writeup of the gentleman would seem to indicate that if the word "spleen" must enter into an accurate description of his makeup, he might have been given the less caustic choice.

Editor's Note: Webster also says "given to irritability," and in the context of the editorial, the word would be taken in this lighter sense.

Communism In Asia

On the front page of The Washington Post, September 13, appeared the headline, "Nehru Urges West to End Colonialism," with a subtitle, "Says Asia Will Stay in Red Camp Unless Self-Rule Is Aided." To this greatest of present-day statesmen the solution is as clear and as simple as that.

Quoting from a copyrighted interview published in United States News and World Report, Pandit Nehru said:

"Communism in Asia is largely due to its alliance with nationalist movements, fighting for independence from foreign domination . . . The tendency of Asian nationalist movements to follow the leadership of the Communist Party is dependent on the degree to which their deep-rooted anti-Colonial impulse is ignored by the Western Powers.

. . . Arms and money alone will not win the heart of Asia, but that support of national movements, seeking to end colonialism, is necessary to better East-West understanding." Specifically he cited the case of Indo-China and urged a halt to Western support of Bao Dai, the French-backed Emperor of Viet Nam, who is fighting the Communist-trained forces of Ho Chi Minh. He asserted:

"The desire of the people of Indo-China for their independence is legitimate and should be respected. It is not a military problem to be solved in terms of strategy, but a human one. No outside help should be given to bolster up the colonial regime in Indo-China."

It is no armchair matter we are discussing. It is revolution as revolution is when it means business. We Americans ought to know something about that if we have not wholly repudiated our past. For teeming millions in China it is a new faith, born of poverty and misery, born of the new knowledge that starvation, disease, flood, As Mr. Raymond Fosdick said in the New York Times Magazine, February 12, 1950, it is against a rice bowl that is never full, an intolerable system of land tenure, illiteracy and ignorance, a life expectancy of 25 or 30 years—it is against these conditions that the floods have arisen.

"In this upheaval which is long overdue, the old lethargy and acceptance of the inevitable on the part of the masses has been supplanted by a belief that an era of wider justice and greater abundance lies ahead, and by a determination to follow those leaders who promise to guide them there. It is a tragic misconception to think of this mighty movement as inspired solely by communism, and thus to write it off as a tactic in the cold war. What has happened is that the Communists have captured the revolution; . . . but the revolution itself, and all that it stands for, stem far back to ideas and principles which we here in the United States helped launch in the world. For our Nation was born in revolution, and the echo of our trumpet, sounding round the globe, has brought the walls of kingdoms crashing down . . . It is not without significance that when the Allied troops took over the area in September, 1945, they found the streets of cities like Saigon and Batavia plastered with mottoes taken from the Declaration of Independence and the writings of Jefferson and Lincoln . . . In brief, the revolution in Asia is rooted in Western traditions, in a real sense, it is our revolution with which American sympathies and creative capacity ought now to be actively identified. Instead of that, communism has moved in to take the initiative away from us. It has appropriated both the economic and the political goals of the revolution, so that when we attempt—as we should—to discover workable methods by which the imperialistic designs of Russian communism can be contained, we find ourselves in the unhappy position of seeming to oppose some of the objects of the revolution, which, because they are flesh of our flesh, should have our complete understanding and support."

Here are gleanings from the wisdom and genuine statesmanship of two great thinkers: Pandit Nehru of Asia, and Raymond Fosdick, of our own United States. And now, back to the revolving squirrel cage of the Congress, spinning in such frenzied r.p.m. that it is impossible to tell its statesmen from its Wherrys and McCarthys.

Matter Of Fact

Where We Stand

THE NEWS from Korea is good. But the news from New York is bad. On-the-spot reports from Korea will soon appear in this department; but it is believed in Washington that the successful landings in the north may bring victory sooner than it had seemed possible to hope. Yet the good news from Korea should not be allowed to obscure the central fact.

This is that the strategic situation of the United States and its Allies is nothing short of intolerable. Moreover, it will remain intolerable just so long as there is no real defense of western Europe—and this is the problem with which the Foreign Ministers of the Atlantic Pact powers have been grappling in New York, with what appears to be marked lack of success.

There is one way to understand just how intolerable our situation is, while the defense of western Europe remains a paper defense. This is to ask the best informed of the strategic planners for their best estimates of the course of a general war breaking out in the near future. There is, perhaps, nothing particularly surprising about their answers. But just as a reminder of where we really stand, it may be worth repeating these answers in capsule form.

FIRST, of course, just about everything the United States has, except the strategic Air Force, the inadequate continental air command, and odds and ends of divisions, is now committed in Korea. Thus it is "difficult to see how a stand could be made anywhere in Europe, even behind the Pyrenees."

Second, the planners accept the view of Winston Churchill of the position of the British Isles, if the continent is overrun. Even in the bad days of 1940, Churchill said recently, he had "good hopes" that England would win through, even alone. "But now," he continued, "I cannot feel the same sense of concrete assurance." While the continent is defenseless, the planners believe, it must be assumed that Britain might be neutralized even without an invasion.

Third, there is virtually nothing available for the defense of the Middle East. Thus, "we would do very well to secure a major base in North Africa."

Fourth, southeast Asia, already so threatened, would go the way of China. And with the mainland of Asia gone, the defense of the American bases in Japan, Okinawa, and the Philippines is rated "very difficult and probably impossible."

It is time to face up to what this means. It means a United States, for the first time in its hisory, fighting almost alone, retaining as effective allies only such British Commonwealth countries as Canada, New Zealand, and Australia, plus whatever allies could be found among the Latin American countries.

This is the assumption which must be made, at least for planning purposes. There is, of course, another side to the picture. As of today, according to the best guesses of the best guessers in the Pentagon, the Soviet Union could eliminate at most 15 percent of the American war potential by atomic bombardment. On the other hand, the Soviet Union could be "turned back to the Middle Ages"—reduced to an essentially agrarian civilization.

Moreover, the United States would have many secret allies in the vast areas occupied by the Red army. It is not impossible that under such circumstances the whole structure of Soviet power might quite suddenly collapse. But it is also not impossible, the planners warn, that "such a war might last for 30 years."

THE KEY to everything is the defense of western Europe Only when there is real military power in western Europe will the growing stockpile of Soviet atom bombs be balanced by equality in conventional military strength in the west. Until the vacuum in western Europe is filled, everyone in this country as well as in Europe, must learn to live on his nerves. Therefore another question needs answering. How long must this period last? Given an absolutely all-out effort, both here and in Europe, how soon could the vacuum be filled?

The planners answer this question by saying that thirty divisions, with the necessary air support, could be created in western Europe within 18 months. This would provide "a very useful deterrent." After this hard core had been created, expansion could be very rapid—to sixty divisions in thirty months. This would provide a real and solid defense of the Continent.

In the above answer, the planners put all possible emphasis on what could be done, rather than on what will be done. But in view of the somber realities of our strategic situation, as outlined above, it is surely obvious that whatever can be done must be done. It is against this background that the results of the meetings in New York, which Secretary of State Dean Acheson has correctly described as the most important since the war ended, must be judged.

A Formosan Settlement?

THERE IS a strong case to be made, I believe, for telling the United Nations as they meet in the General Assembly what we believe to be the principles of a just and honorable settlement of the Formosa question. To do this would be the logical sequel to the President's broadcast of September 1. In that he had to counteract the effects of General MacArthur's statement by telling the world what we do not want for ourselves. Having said what ought not to happen in Formosa, it probably would be a good idea to say what we think would be the right and wise thing to do about Formosa.

It may not be too difficult to formulate the principles of a Formosan settlement which would command general respect and win wide support. Nothing, to be sure, which one touches in this time of troubles is easy. Everything is hard and twisted. Yet as compared with many other problems, the Formosa problem is simple. It is simple as compared, for example, with the problem of what to do about Korea, with what to do about Indo-China, with what to do about the future of Japan. The main elements of the Formosan problem are known. Moreover, since Formosa is an island and therefore within the orbit of sea power, what we think might be the terms of a settlement will have greater weight than what we might propose for some more inaccessible country.

FOR ABOUT three hundred years—until it was conquered by Japan in 1895—Formosa was a recognized part of the empire which owed allegiance to the Manchus. By the Cairo Declaration Britain, the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R. are committed, now that Japan is defeated, to "restore" Formosa to "the Republic of China." Though there are now two governments claiming to be the Republic of China, almost the only thing on which these two Chinese governments agree is that Formosa must be restored to, and must not be taken away from, the Republic of China.

THE SECOND element of the problem is, it seems to me, that the people of Formosa have natural rights. These natural rights were not mentioned in the Cairo Declaration but none the less they exist and no settlement of the Formosa question which ignored them would be consistent with the purposes and the principles of the Charter of the United Nations. The natural rights of the people of Formosa have been gravely abused first by the Japanese and then by the mainland Chinese. The people of Formosa must not be treated as chattels which once belonged to Japan and now belong to the Republic of China.

Therefore, while the rights of China in Formosa are indisputable, these rights must be reconciled, if there is to be a just settlement, with the rights of the people of Formosa.

THERE IS a third element of the problem which arises out of the strategic position of the island. Formosa was used by Japan as a springboard for the invasion of the Philippines and for the Japanese conquest of the Netherlands Indies and for the Japanese threat to Australia. The security of the western Pacific would be troubled if Formosan air fields and harbors were the bases of an important air force and submarine fleet.

On the other hand, the security of China requires that Formosa should not be the base for military forces which have their guns pointed, even if the guns are not heavily loaded, towards the mainland. It should be easy for Americans to understand the Chinese view of Formosa by remembering how we feel about Cuba.

THUS A FORMOSAN settlement must reconcile first, the rights of China with the rights of the Formosan people and second, the security of China with the security of the Philippines and the western Pacific. This might be done if the treaty between the allied powers and Japan were to recognize Formosa as an autonomous state under Chinese suzerainty which was demilitarized by agreement with the United Nations.

Under these principles the treaty could specify the subjects in which Chinese suzerainty was exercised — foremost among them foreign affairs—and the subjects in which Formosa was autonomous—naturally enough its internal affairs. The agreement with the United Nations could cover the nature of the military installations permitted on the island, it could make provisions for a Formosan police and militia, and it could set forth rules and regulations about the entrance of any non-Formosan military or police upon the island.

THIS FORMULA would seem to recognize the legitimate interests of all who are really concerned. Were we to take our stand on these principles,—Chinese suzerainty, Formosan autonomy, and demilitarization,—not only would the accusations that we are aggressors in Formosa collapse completely but we should, I believe, go far in convincing the people of the world that in resisting aggression and in preparing against war we have not forgotten the art of making peace.

Children's Choir Quits Reds' Radio Berlin

BERLIN, Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Russian-controlled Radio Berlin lost one of its main attractions today when its children's choir switched over to the American-operated Rias Radio in the American sector.

Mrs. Isle Obrig, manager, said the choir quit Radio Berlin because of "political censorship." She said the station tried to force the choir to sing "progressive" songs approved by the Communists while religious songs were banned.

Sesqui Drama Out $15,000 In 6 Weeks

"Faith of Our Fathers," Sesquicentennial drama, is nearly $15,000 in the red after six weeks, but the debt can be wiped out by four good-sized crowds, Paul M. Massmann, general manager of the Sesqui Commission, said yesterday.

Officials believe they can entice at least 3300 people a night to "Faith of Our Fathers" by having Bar Association Night Wednesday and Board of Trade Night September 27.

The Naval Academy Choir and Band will take part in the performance September 29 and a big crowd is expected for the final production, September 30.

A gradual "snowballing" in attendance is restoring faith in "Faith of Our Fathers." Two weeks ago attendance was below the 1000 mark. Saturday and yesterday about 1200 attended each day.

"If we had not had those five rainouts," Massman said, "We would just about be breaking even now."

Massmann added that "I'd like to have sufficient profit—roughly $22,000—to meet preproduction costs next spring."

"Faith of Our Fathers" grossed $2380 the first two performances. The following week the tally was $10,800 Folowing weeks the cash registers rang up $4970. $5763 and $5515. The show is closed Mondays.

The amphitheater will be "winterized" in October, Massmann said. Lights, loud speakers, scenery, and costumes will be stored under the stage of the amphitheater, at 16th st. and Colorado ave. nw.

D. C. Ponders Use Of Defense Funds

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young last night said the District of Columbia government should have specific ideas today on how it will use the $100,000 civil-defense fund agreed on Saturday by Senate-House conferees.

The District originally had asked Congress for $290,000.

The Senate approved the full amount. The House, however, granted a token $30,000. The $100,000 was a compromise figure.

General Young said he was not sure whether the $100,000 was earmarked for specific uses, or whether it could be used as the Commissioners see fit.

The $100,000 is included in the supplemental appropriation bill. The measure will receive final approval of both houses of Congress this week.

Meantime, on the civilian defense picture, recruiting starts today on the police reserve corps.

Police have estimated that the corps ultimately would have 4000 to 5000 members. They would receive special police powers from the District Commissioners in times of emergency.

Application forms will be available at precinct and special division and bureau headquarters. Maximum strength has been set as five reserves for each regular policeman in the precinct and two to each policeman in the detective, women's and other bureaus and units.

Each precinct and unit or bureau will take no more than 55 reservists initially.

It isn't every singing wife whose husband can play her accompaniments to perfection.

But Jean Browning Madeira sang last night at the National Gallery and Francis Madeira played for her. The lady is a leading contralto at the Metropolitan Opera and her husband conducts the Rhode Island Philharmonic Orchestra.

They make a fine pair. With her rich natural voice, Mrs. Madeira sings everything in a dramatic fashion that never lets you forget her operatic background. Her husband, with fluent pianistic technique, handles music of varying styles, with equal authority.

He contributed Haydn's most often played sonata, the one in D Major. While it is true he knows style and has fine technique, he nevertheless played it with more pedal than made for clarity, especially in the over-resonant hall.

In their joint performances, the Madeiras showed that intimate understanding of music's phrases and moods that one can expect from artists who work closely together much of the time. At the same time, the intimacy of the accompaniments prevented them from asserting themselves sufficiently for the music at hand.

Thus Respighi's big sea song, In Alto Mare, came out like a storm from the singer, but the piano mainatined its over-discreet position in the background. Surely a man's wife wouldn't refuse him a just allowance volume!

The handsome young contralto sang a decidedly light program with little change in her rich vocal color. Nuance and more nuance is what she needs to become a true art song interpreter. The early fall audience was highly enthusiastic about all they heard.

98 Converts Baptized in Jordan Water

Ninety-eight persons, convinced by the preaching of Elder Lightfoot Solomon Michaux, became communicants of the Church of God at Griffith Stadium's home plate last night.

In a baptismal ceremony witnessed by 27,000 worshippers and spectators, the converts were immersed in 649 gallons of pure River Jordan water imported from Israel for this special occasion.

The 98 converts came from New York, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Newport News, as well as in Washington.

Last night marked the climax of the summer-long campaign conducted by the elder, who is president of the Gospel Spreading Association and calls himself the General of the International Forces of Right against Wrong.

Before last night's event at the ball park, the converts and the River Jordan water were displayed in a 22-mile parade. Painted in white on the black water drums was the inscription: "Shipment of water from the River Jordan for Elder Michaux's Big Baptizing at Griffith Stadium, Washington, D. C., U. S. A., September 17, 1950.

A good part of a 90-minute delay in the start was spent rolling the unwieldy drums to the flag-draped tank and pouring the rusty River Jordan water in. Since it was hardly enough to cover the bottom of the 20,000-gallon tank, a special small-capacity tank was provided. Surrrounding it were 10,000 gallons of unimported, though clearer, Potomac River water.

From his pulpit on the pitcher's mound, the Elder preached his sermon, "Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory." Behind him, arranged to form a huge white cross, sat the famed Cross Choir, glistening under green and violet lights. On the third-base side sat the 27-piece orchestra, garbed in white ducks and dark coats, and over towards first base were arrayed the Elder's guests.

No admission was charged. A purchaser of a $1 pamphlet, at the ball park ticket window found a reserved seat ticket stapled to the pamphlet. Those who did not purchase pamphlets went to a "free will offering" window where tickets were given for "free will offerings." Those who did neither were let in without tickets.

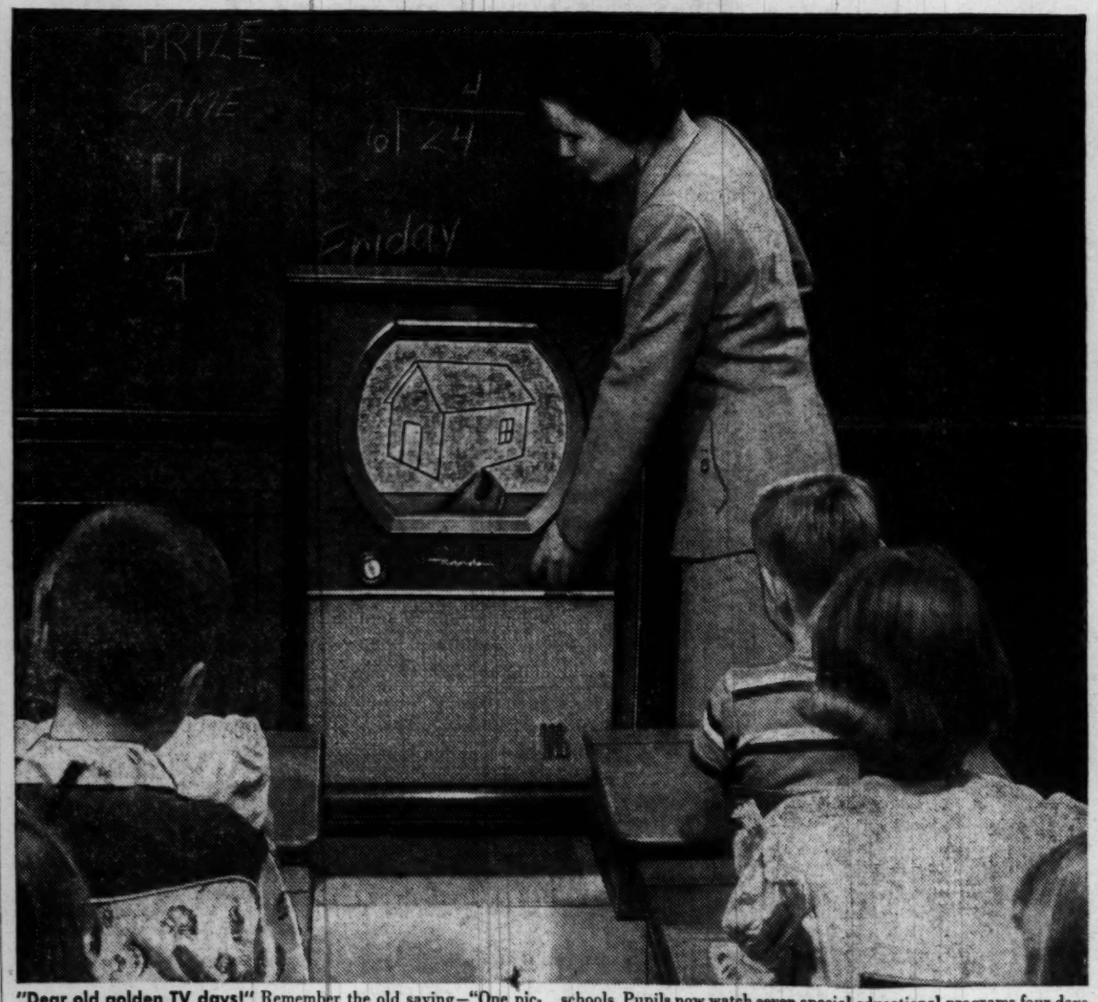
TELEVISION MAKES IT FUN TO LEARN

Motorola, leader in television, tells why TV will be biggest aid to education since invention of printing!



"Dear old golden TV days!" Remember the old saying—"One picture is worth a thousand words." That's the beauty of TV teaching. It's painless. Youngsters learn more—and remember longer. That's why large screens have been installed in classrooms of 51 Philadelphia schools. Pupils now watch seven special educational programs four days a week. Chicago, Baltimore and other cities are experimenting with this new video teaching. In the future, we may all thank TV for helping to solve the teacher shortage problem now so acute in many sections.

Watch the world! April 23, 1950 saw the start of the TV network program, entitled "Watch the World." Its aim is to keep the youngest generation informed on "who's who and what's what" in popular science, art and current events. Dr. William Jansen, Superintendent of New York City Schools, called it a big step toward television "gradually taking its rightful place in education."

For grown-ups too! Those of us with a thirst for knowledge will find interesting tuition-free TV courses ... on Babies, Health, Cooking, Household Management, Art, Book Reviews and many other topics.

TV gets its MD! A "surgeon's-eye" view of operations—for medical students! By means of specially constructed cameras, medical classes now learn by watching close-ups of great surgeons in action!

Motorola's leadership in cabinet design as well as performance is recognized with the 1950 Fashion Academy Gold Medal Award. Typical example of Motorola supremacy is this Console Model 17K2. Clear, steady 16" picture, only 2 simple controls, Bilt-in-Antenna, price only $329.95. View it at your dealer's along with other beautiful Motorola models from $189.95 to $650.

Arrange for a Motorola demonstration—to prove what an aid to education TV can be in your home.

Tigers Lose, Fall Full Game Back as Yanks Split

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

DETROIT, Sept. 17.—Steve O'Neill, the manager of the Boston Red Sox, this week was confronted with a wonderful dilemma. His happy problem was: Which .300 hitter would he bench to make room for his returning thumper, Ted Williams?

Povich

O'Neill met it smartly by telling Third Baseman Johnny Pesky, a mere .313 hitter, to take a vacation. He would move his all-purpose utility Billy Goodman (.359) out of left field and back to third base, and install Williams (.330) in his old left field spot. It was a clear gain of 17 batting points for the Sox, plus Williams' extra-base power.

Whereupon the Red Sox plunged into a three-game series with the seventh-place Browns who don't have a .300 hitter to their name, and blew two of the three games. The cost of those defeats won't finally be reckoned until October 1, but they could well have blown the pennant.

If they do, only the Red Sox could achieve the loss of the pennant with the kind of hitting they own. The fact that they didn't have the pennant locked up at this point is an almost criminal indictment of the Boston pitching.

THE RED SOX have been giving their pitchers an average of seven runs a game from the start of the season, but the Boston club has never been higher than third. That O'Neill hasn't cultivated the biggest crop of ulcers in medical history is testimony to his wonderful composure. Dobson, Kinder, Stobbs, Masterson are pitching games that this year could provoke any manager who has to watch them pitch.

Yet going into today's affair with the Tigers, the Sox had won 25 of their last 30 games, and the reason is pretty obvious. With their kind of power, they can rise above a badly pitched ball game and win it. On two consecutive days, they spotted Cleveland 7-0 and 12-1 leads and licked 'em.

When the Yankees were in Detroit last weekend, battling the Tigers for the lead, they were looking beyond the Detroit club and hoping to gain some ground on the Red Sox. The Yanks, a power club themselves, respect power. Manager Casey Stengel confessed, "I expect we'll wind up having to beat the Red Sox to finish on top."

AS USUAL, the Red Sox outfit is rife with rumors. Certain of his teammates don't like Ted Williams, say some of the traveling correspondents with the team. "They grumbled when he went off fishing while he was recovering from his elbow operation, and said he should have at least sat on the bench with the rest of the guys," was one report.

But on the Red Sox bench today there was no sign of bitterness toward Williams. You couldn't tell, anyway. He never did pay much attention to them, nor they to him. There are plenty of Williams defenders on the club. One of 'em was saying today, "I've made up my mind after all these years that Williams is just bashful."

The fact that Williams doesn't rush out on the field to greet a teammate who has just banged one out of the park may have dignified stories that he's a self-centered performer, but his friends have an explanation for that, too. "If Ted is sure nobody is looking, he gives the guy a big hand when he gets back to the bench," they say.

AT THIS POINT, Williams is not the slashing .330 hitter who banged 26 homers in the first half of the season. That elbow, fractured in the All-Star game, is still a painful bother. Ted can't, and isn't taking his good cut. He's a hitter now of the Billy Goodman type, a slapper. There's no muscle in the elbow yet. He's hoping it will come around.

"I'll be all right in a couple of weeks, maybe," he was saying today. It was a day on which Ted talked freely, one of his charming personality days that overcome him ever so often. "If I don't hurt the arm again, I'll be taking my good cut. Any kind of a bad slide that hurts the arm, or a collision with somebody, and it might rack me up."

"And stay away from the fences," somebody suggested.

"Yeah, that's a good idea," Williams agreed. "I'd like to do all my fence-busting business with my bat in the future, not with my elbow.

Kinder Halts Detroit in 9th for 3-2 Bosox Win

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

DETROIT, Sept. 17.—Out of the bullpen trudged Ellis Kinder in the ninth inning today to stage a Tiger-taming act for the frantic Red Sox, save the last remnant of a 3-0 lead, and get Boston home in front, 3-2. The loss dropped the Tigers a full game behind the league leading Yankees who split with the Browns.

The desperate Red Sox sent for the veteran Kinder after Mel Parnell, a shut-out pitcher for eight innings, went into a ninth-inning swoon induced by Pinch-hitter Charley Keller's triple. The Tigers had two runs home, Johnny Lipon on first, and none out when Kinder took charge.

As 53,167 Briggs Stadium fans clamored for the tying run, Kinder rebuffed the Tigers with all possible speed. They got Lipon to second base on a sacrifice by Gerry Priddy, but George Kell was thrown out on a ground ball to Vern Stephens, and Kinder personally disposed of Vic Wertz by the direct method of striking him out.

The last pitch was foul-tipped by Wertz but it thudded into Catcher Birdie Tebbetts' glove and stuck. The gleeful Tebbetts held it high aloft as he walked from the field—his answer to Detroit fans who had been pouring boos into his ears all day.

It was the latest demonstration of Kinder week. For the fourth straight day, he was rescuing some floundering starting pitcher. Today he was saving a big one for the Red Sox, that left them only a half game to the rear of the Tigers in the newly-tightened pennant race.

Parnell, fortified by a run that Vern Stephens had driven in for him off Freddie Hutchinson in the first inning, and two more that Birdie Tebbetts singled home in the fourth, was apparently on the way to a shutout victory when he collapsed.

The young Boston southpaw began inviting disaster with none out in the ninth when he walked pinch hitter Joe Ginsberg, a left-handed swinger, on four pitches. Then Charley Keller, the old Yankee, moved in as a pinch hitter for Hutchinson and provoked hysteria in the packed stands with a tremendous triple off the fence in right center.

When Johnny Lipon rapped a single to left to drive in the second Detroit run and put the tying tally on with none out, Manager Steve O'Neill tolerated Parnell no longer. Kinder got the nod, and three quick outs later, the scoreboard showed the wisdom of O'Neill's choice.

At the finish, both Parnell and Hutchinson had turned in seven-hit pitching jobs, but the Red Sox had given their man a 1-0

Noren's Homer In 9th Gives Nats Split

Special to The Washington Post

CHICAGO, Sept. 17.—Irv Noren and Bob Kuzava combined to give the Nats a 3-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox in the second game of a doubleheader here today.

Chicago won the first game, 4-0.

Noren hit a home run in the ninth inning that broke a 2-2 tie in that second game. Kuzava, taking no chances, struck out the White Sox in their half of the inning to gain his ninth victory against as many defeats.

Kuzava was superb against his old mates. He struck out nine and allowed only eight hits in besting Randy Gumpert. In the last inning, he threw third strikes past Dave Philley, Gordon Goldsberry and Gus Zernial.

Umpire in chief Hank Soar had ordered the Comiskey Park lights turned on when Noren stepped up and clubed his eleventh homer.

Noren also sent across Washington's first run in the opening inning when he sent a long fly to Philley that scored Eddie Yost.

Chicago got to Starter Connie Marrero for all nine of its hits in the first game. They pushed across a run in the fourth on two hits, two more in the fifth on four hits, and their finals in the sixth on a walk and two hits.

Sammy Baugh Hurls 3 Touchdown Passes

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

BALTIMORE, Sept. 17.—This brand-new edition of the Washington Redskins still relies mightily on the good right arm of Sammy Baugh.

It was the ageless Mr. Baugh who pitched three of the five touchdowns as the Redskins crushed the Baltimore Colts, 38-14, in the National Football League opener for both in Memorial Stadium today before an estimated 26,000.

Sharing offensive honors with the 14-year pro veteran was Hugh (Bones) Taylor, elongated end, who carried three passes into the end zone.

It was Baugh who made the first strike—a 27-yard pass that Taylor took all by himself over the Baltimore goal line late in the first period. And it was Baugh's short screen pass to Bob Goode on a 56-yard scoring play that took a bit of the steam out of the game, but outclassed Colts when they were trying to make it a contest.

That was in the third period when Baltimore fought back from a 14-0 halftime deficit to get their first score on Chet Mutryn's driving 34-yard smash through the Redskin line. Baugh's pass to Goode erased the effort and put the Redskins in front, 21-7.

Then Sammy's 30-yard toss to Hugh Taylor to the Baltimore 9 set up an 11-yard field goal by Bill Dudley that made it 24-7 and just about killed any chance the Colts had of victory.

In all, Slingin' Sam threw 15 passes, completing 10 for 192 yards.

Before it developed into a rout, Baltimore did manage to retaliate for a touchdown on a seven-

Colts Eliminate Scoreboard To Keep Bad News From Team

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

BALTIMORE, Sept. 17.—The Baltimore Colts' dressing room had all the gaiety of a morgue following the Redskins' 38-14 victory today, but Abe Watner, Colts' president, felt quite at home. He's an undertaker.

When a fan in front of the press box asked an usher where the scoreboard in Memorial Stadium was, the usher replied: "There ain't none, it's part of the Colts' coaches strategy. They don't want the players to know how bad they're getting licked."

Coach Greasy Neale, whose proud Eagles were whipped, 35-10, by the Cleveland Browns in Philadelphia last night, showed up "just to see Herman Ball and Clem Crowe suffer."

Neale said he was convinced more than ever now that the Browns, four-time champs of the All-America Conference, didn't belong in the National Football League. "They belong in a league all by themselves," he explained.

THE REDSKINS SHOWED their superiority as early as 30 minutes before the game. Their 110-piece band was not only larger than the Colts' band, but played louder also.

Coach Crowe made his first tactical error midway in the first quarter; he substituted Bob Perina, a defensive halfback, for Bob Livingstone to instruct the latter on how to guard Hugh Taylor. While Livingstone was receiving instructions, Baugh pitched a touchdown pass to Taylor over Perina's head.

In the second quarter, Taylor caught another pass for a touchdown, over Livingston's head this time. But the former Notre Damer wasn't entirely to blame. The Redskins had changed pitchers, Harry Gilmer for Baugh, without notifying the Colts.

SHORTLY BEFORE HALFTIME, when the Redskins led 14-0, the public address announcer informed the fans that the Baltimore Orioles had been beaten by Montreal, 5-0, in the International League play-offs. This prompted a cynical fan to say: "Even the baseball team has a better defense than the Colts."

"Tittle through the middle" became the fans' chant as the third quarted started, and Yelverton Abraham Tittle, jr., answered them by slipping through the middle for 22 yards to set up a Colts' touchdown.

CHET MUTRYN, the best running back on the field, scored it, dashing 34 yards for the touchdown. Making his official debut in the NFL, the former All-America Conference star paused long enough for a quick introduction to Paul Lipscomb, Joe Tereshenski and Harry Gilmer, of the Redskins, who all had a shot at him and missed.

BILL DUDLEY, who had done nothing but run with the ball most of the time, catch a few passes, kickoff, convert all the extra points and make a few tackles, found time on his hands two plays later and kicked an 11-yard field goal just for the heck of it to boost the Redskins' bulge to 24-7.

That took a little of the sting out of the Colts but not all of it. They drove to the Redskins' 7-yard line and then gave the ball to Geno Mazzanti, who rammed over Paul Lipscomb's tackle for the touchdown. Rex Grossman, who kicked 63 straight extra points for the Colts in the AAC, proved he could do it in the NFL, too. He added his second straight one-pointer; but time and the fans were both running out.

Hopp's 4-Run Homer Gives Yanks Split

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 17 (AP).—The New York Yankees pulled a full game ahead of Detroit in the American League race today in a dramatic ninth-inning rally that gave them a 6-1 victory over the St. Louis Browns in the second game of a double-header.

The Browns won the first game, 6-5.

The winning blow in the second game was struck by Pinch Hitter Johnny Hopp, who smashed a grand-slam homer in the ninth to break up a 1-1 deadlock. It was his first home run in the American League.

Allie Reynolds was the winner of the closing contest, giving up but two hits.

The nightcap was a tense pitchers' battle going into the ninth. Opposing Reynolds for the Browns, Al Widmar had allowed only three hits up to that point.

Joe DiMaggio had put New York ahead 1-0 in the fourth with a double, scoring on Hank Bauer's single.

But the Browns tied it up in the sixth. Ray Coleman singled for the first hit against Reynolds. Sherman Lollar doubled and Hank Arft looped a long fly to the outfield for the marker.

Johnny Mize opened the ninth with a single. Bobby Brown, pinch-hitting, bunted for a sacrifice and both he and Mize were safe on Widmar's late throw. Attempting to bunt, Bauer popped to the pitcher.

Tommy Henrich, batting for Jerry Coleman, grounded to Owen Friend at second. Friend booted the ball and the bases were loaded.

It was then that Hopp came in—pinching for Reynolds. His home run bounced off the right field pavilion roof.

Vic Raschi finished the game for the Yankees.

Ken Wood paced St. Louis in the opener with three doubles, one a ninth-inning slam that drove

Hamner Day Success, Granny's Homer Wins for Phillies, 5-3

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 17 (AP).—They had a day for Granny Hamner today at Shibe Park and the Philadelphia Phillies' shortstop celebrated the occasion by whacking a three-run homer that gave the National League leaders a 5-3 triumph over the Pittsburgh Pirates. Hamner was honored with many gifts by friends from his home town, Richmond, Va.

Hamner's circuit clout highlighted a five-run fifth inning off Pittsburgh Pitcher Bill Werle.

Chicago Snuffs Rally In Fourth Quarter

Waterfield-Davis' 49-Yard Pass Play Highlight of Threat

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 17 (AP).—The favored Chicago Bears ran into rough going against the Los Angeles Rams today, but scored a 24-20 victory in their National Football League opener.

The Bears held a 17-7 lead at the half and managed to snuff out a threat by the Rams in the final quarter.

A spectacular pass from Quarterback Bob Waterfield to Halfback Glenn Davis was good for 49 yards to the Chicago one-yard marker and brought Los Angeles up to a 20-24 margin in the last five minutes of play.

But the Bears, under Johnny Lujack's direction, were determined to protect this victory after being beaten twice by the Rams last year and held on to their slim advantage.

Norm Van Brocklin sent the Rams 51 yards in seven plays, including one 31-yard pass to End Tom Fears, and Los Angeles scored first. Big Dick Hoerner dove over from the one-yard stripe.

The stout Ram line stopped a Chicago drive soon thereafter, and Lujack booted a field goal for the Bears.

The Bears finally took over the lead in the third period when Gerald Weatherly, rookie center from Rice, intercepted a Van Brocklin pass. It gave Chicago a 10-7 lead.

Sid Luckman put the Bears further out in front with a perfect pitch to John Hoffman on a play that covered 44 yards.

J. R. Boone set the Bears up for another touchdown with a 48-yard punt return, and Lujack ushered his team down to the one. George Guyanics, who carried most of the Bear offense, bulled over from there.

Waterfield completed three quick passes—one to Fears for 7, another to Hoerner for 17 and the last, for 37, went to Hirsch. "Crazy-Legs" went the distance for six points.

Waterfield's tremendous pass to Davis put the ball on the 1-yard line again, from which point Fullback Dan Towler punched it across.

Layne's Passes, 7 Interceptions Ruin Packers

GREEN BAY, Wis., Sept. 17 (AP). Bobby Layne passed Green Bay silly in the first half and the Detroit Lions went on to trounce the Packers, 45-7, today before 22,096 fans in their National Football League openers at City Stadium.

Layne completed eight of 12 passes for 171 yards and one touchdown in the first half as the Lions walked all over the remodeled Packers.

From there on it was all Detroit. Doak Walker booted a 38-yard field goal, the first of two for the afternoon. Then Layne passed to Walker, who fumbled on the two-yard line with Johnny Greene recovering in the end zone for the first Lion score.

Layne tossed 40 yards to Cloyce Box who went another 10 to score, and Clarence Self intercepted a pass by Tom O'Malley and scampered 56 yards. Walker converted after the last touchdown, but missed his first two tries.

39-yard Layne-to-Greene pass set up the second half scoring, Ollie Cline crashing through the middle from 10 yards out to post it.

Bo McMillin used a second-string backfield the last period and it drove 43 yards with Lindell Parson scoring from two yards out. Walker returned to kick the point.

Giants Whip Steelers On See-Saw Fumble, 18-7

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 17.—The New York Giants broke out of shackles fashioned by the Pittsburgh Steelers for three periods today to run wild in the final quarter and open their national football league season with an 18-7 victory.

The Giants, winning their second game with the Steelers in seven times out, sewed up the contest in the fourth quarter on a touchdown that resulted from a Pittsburgh fumble in the Steelers' end zone.

Two safeties chalked up in the second and final quarters were extra gravy, after a spectacular second touchdown in the closing minutes of the game.

The first New York score came when Pittsburgh Back Joe Geri fumbled in the end zone while trying to get off a punt. New York Tackle Al De Rogatis fell on the ball for a touchdown.

The Giants' second touchdown was a spectacular whiz-bang that few in the crowd of 24,696 could follow. The play began when Pittsburgh's Jim Fink's forward-pass attempt was intercepted by New York's Harmond Rowe. Rowe fumbled, and the ball was recovered by Frank Wydo of Pittsburgh.

Wydo also fumbled. Next, Ray Poole recovered the ball for New York. Finding himself cornered by Pittsburgh tacklers, Poole quickly lateralled to Tom Landry, Giant back, who ran for a touchdown.

Pittsburgh's only score was chalked up in the third period and gave Pittsburgh a 7-2 lead going into the final quarter. Pittsburgh scored on a line buck by Fullback Jerry Shipkey.

Yanks Take 21-17 Clash With 49ers

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 17 (AP). Combining smashing ground power with timely passing, the New York Yanks scored a 21-to-17 victory over the San Francisco Forty-Niners today in a game opening the National Football League season for the two teams.

A crowd of 29,992 fans saw the Yanks score two touchdowns in the first period and another in the third. The Forty-Niners tallied touchdowns in the second and fourth and also scored three points with a field goal in the second.

Gordon Toth, rookie fullback from Louisiana State, was the powerhouse in the Yank attack that saw the visitors drive 69 yards in the opennig period and 74 yards in the third quarter.

They captalized on a recovered fumble in the first quarter to score the other touchdown. The fumbled ball sailed into the air when it was fumbled by the 49ers' safety, Lowell Wagner, and Jose Golding ran 27 yards for the score.

Quantico Beaten, 34-13

CINCINNATI, Sept. 17 (AP).—Xavier University's Musketeers walloped the Quantico Marines tonight, 34-13, aided by a feeble Quantico line which didn't give Eddie Lebaron enough time to get away his famed passes.

The Leathernecks held Xavier scoreless for the first period while scoring early themselves. A Xavier fumble on its own 48 and two tosses by LeBaron, former College of the Pacific standout, brought the ball to the 1, Bill Hawkins bulling over for the touchdown.

Then the Muskies rolled over two touchdowns each in the second and third periods. Both teams exchanged interceptions and turned them into touchdowns in the final quarter.

Miss Pepsi Wins Regatta

Winner Smashes All Cup Records

By Happy Walker

Racing history was made yesterday as the smooth running Miss Pepsi broke all existing records in the final two heats to win the President's Cup Regatta Gold Cup classic.

With Chuck Thompson at the wheel, the roaring giant jumped into the lead in both of yesterday's first and second heats and was never threatened throughout the 30-mile grind.

Lap after lap, the twin Allison-powered beauty whined around the 2½ mile course setting a new heat record of 88.278 m.p.h. The old record of 83.179 m.p.h. E. J. Schoenith's Gale was passed on the third lap.

In the fourth lap, Miss Pepsi overtook George Sarant's Etta, and in the fifth lap, Jack Schafer's Such Crust II.

The hair raising fifth lap saw the old lap record of 83.179 miles per hour fall, with Thompson gunning his charger to a new mark of 91.278 miles per hour. Thompson finished one full lap ahead of Danny Murphy's Dee Jay, last boat to finish the heat.

Such Crust I took second, My Sweetie third, Such Crust II fourth; George Sarant's Etta finished fifth and Gale, sixth.

Going into the third and final heat Thompson, assured of victory on points, cut the blistering pace, but still managed to lap the entire field. In the fourth lap Danny Foster, at the wheel of Such Crust I, made a gallant bid to overtake the leader only to run into motor trouble and drop out.

Much to Dan Arena's disgust, Such Crust II also gave up.

In the final lap, Thompson opened up the twin Allisons, sending his lap record made in the first heat, falling for a new mark of 95.030 miles per hour.

Thompson's spectacular performance in Miss Pepsi gave the $25,000 President's Cup to her owners, the Dossin Brothers, Walter and Roy, for the second time within four years. With the cup went 2000 points, 400 for each heat win, 400 for the fastest heat and 400 for the fastest lap. Danny Foster drove the first Miss Pepsi to victory in 1946.

Runnersup on points were: My Sweetie—850, Such Crust I—427, Such Crust II—394, Gale—350, Etta—296 and Dee Jay 296.

The cup will be presented to owners Walter and Roy Dossin today at the White House. President Truman will make the presentation.

The day's opening event, the 135 hydros, saw William Martens, D. C. Brothers Set World Mark

Hampton, Va., lead half the pack outside the spectator boats, then around the wrong buoy, finally conking out. Joe Wolf, Marion, Pa., won the race with 700 points and with it the National Broadcasting Company trophy.

Washington's own Thacker brothers, Aubrey and Joe, gave spectators a real thrill as they cracked their own world record for a new high of 49.450 m.p.h. Their old mark was 47.244 m.p.h. The Thackers also took top honors in the D service runabout class.

Tracer Hill, McHenry, III, outpointed a field of eight starters to take the highly prized Mexican Hat Trophy, donated by the Mexican Government in the E racing runabout event.

Martin Club Wins Amateur Baseball Title

Herman Herring and Bill Baumiller pitched the Martin Bombers of Baltimore to the championship of the All-American Amateur Baseball tournament yesterday at Griffith Stadium, stopping Elkton, Md., 4-0, and Zanesville, Ohio, 7-1.

The Bombers collected only four hits against Elkton, but bunched three of them in a three-run third inning. Bill Lucas crashed out three hits, including a home run into the temporary seats in left field, to pace the Baltimore nine in the finals.

Elkton, unbeaten as the double-elimination tourney entered its final day of play, was shut out twice in the semifinals and did not even reach the title game. By winning, the Bombers recaptured the crown they last won in 1945 and raised their season's record to 66 wins in 71 contests.

Baugh Leads Redskins To 38-14 Win yard plunge by rookie Geno Mazzanti to trail by 24-14.

Baugh had the answer for that, too, as the fourth period began—a 31-yard scoring pass to the fleet, 6-foot-4 Taylor.

Harry Dowda added the coupe de grace as the Colts began to really disintergrate. He grabbed one of the harassed Y. A. Tittle's passes in the flat on Baltimore's 23 and sped down the sideline for the Redskin's final score.

It remained for Baugh's understudy, Harry Gilmer, to set up and execute the game's most dazzling play. It was Washington's second score and started from the Redskins' 46.

After a terrific fake that completely confused the Colts' secondary, Gilmer faded way back and tossed the ball nearly 50 yards to that man Taylor. Bones took the ball on the Baltimore 17 and just loped across.

Making his league start with the Redskins, Virginia's Bill Dudley was the team's top groundgainer with 48 yards in 11 tries and made himself useful receiving short passes. But Bullet Bill used his foot to achieve runnerup scoring honors. In addition to his field goal, he booted five placements perfectly.

The aggressive Redskin line rushed Y. A. Tittle as few passers ever have been rushed before. Rugged End Ed Berrang was the ringleader and he was actually winded from chasing the Colt passer.

Just about every one in the line partook of the sport, Tackle Laurie Niemi, guard John Badaczewski, and the rest. It was miraculous that Tittle was able to complete 19 of his 34 attempts for a handsome 229-yard total.

Washington never was in serious danger of having its unofficial streak broken. The Redskins, for the first time in history, ran triumphantly through a five-game exhibition slate.

Baugh's 27-yard scoring pass to Taylor made it 7-0 and was set up when Laurie Niemi recovered a fumble by the Colts' Rip Collins on Baltimore's 33.

The Colts marched back with three first downs, but when Adrian Burk had to punt and it went out on the Redskin 14, the winners quickly covered the 86 yards in seven plays. The big one, of course, was Gilmer's 54-yard touchdown pass to Taylor.

Baltimore, playing a spirited game, twice penetrated into Washton territory before the half ended. Tittle's short passes were effective and Jim Spavital, Chicago Bear castoff, and Mutryn chewed valuable yardage through the Redskin line.

Right at intermission, Mutryn was knocked out of bounds on the Redskin 14.

When the second half resumed, Baltimore still seemed to have plenty of zip. The Colts took the kickoff and marched to their first score from their 26.

Tittle fooled the Redskin line, for once, when trapped. He put his head down and plunged right down the middle for 23 yeards to the Redskin 48. Mutryn and Collins took it to the 34 and then Chet, All-America conference rushing leader with Buffalo, made his scoring dash.

Terwilliger's Homer Trips Brooks, 3-2

BROOKLYN, Sept. 17 (AP).—Wayne Terwilliger socked a two-run homer in the seventh inning to give the Chicago Cubs a 3-2 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers today. Bob Rush scattered eight hits to pick up his thirteenth victory.

The loss dropped the Dodgers into third place behind the Boston Braves and virtually eliminated them from the pennant race. They are 8½ games behind.

DEAR FOLKS: At Marlboro There should be some merry claiming during the Maryland major season and the objects of affections of horsemen will be the cast-offs of the Calumet Farm. Owner Warren Wright has been reluctant in other years to run Calumet horses in claiming races, preferring to dispose of them through private sale. However, the market has been dull and the famous outfit has thoroughbreds who, despite fancy breeding, can't win except in selling company. Hence, a good percentage of these horses probably will run cheap enough to lure them into new barns. Of course there's always the chance that a horse claimed from a big stable will turn a form flip flop and become another Stymie. When this happens faces get red, if you know what I mean. See you on the rail.—BILL.

Tinkers With Split T

VMI Uses GI Huddle To Baffle Opponents

(This is another in a series of articles on area and Southern Conference football teams.)

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

LEXINGTON, Va., Sept. 17.—Tom Nugent has given the Virginia Military Institute football team a new military bearing, and he hopes it will stir them to a winning performance.

A year out of the high-school coaching ranks, and full of fresh ideas, Nugent has adopted Notre Dame's huddle with the quarterback facing his charges, commanding them to "attention." and "at ease," calling the plays, and sending them back into the line with a clap of their hands on their knees.

Herb Heft

"It will make the players pay closer attention to the quarterback," says Nugent, "and perhaps it will have a psychological effect on the enemy."

Nugent's thinking hasn't stopped with this newfangled huddle. There is a report that he is tinkering with a new variation of the split T.

Whenever the subject is brought up around the VMI camp, the topic is quickly changed. It's top secret. Only thing that has leaked out is the Keydets' four-touchdown-to-one "victory" over North Carolina the other day in a closed-door scrimmage.

Even if the Tar Heels were doing a little experimenting of their own with Carl Snavely's newly adopted "A" formation, the Keydets' showing was pretty good for a team that won only three out of nine in 1949.

AFTER THE scrimmage, Nugent said, "Last spring, I thought my team was a year away from maturity. I was depending on too many sophomores as second-team players to count on much this season. But now I don't know. We might be ready now."

VMI's first-string line is 10 pounds to the man heavier than last year. His backfield is a bit smaller, but faster, and Nugent has two men whom he believes to be as good or better compared to last year's quarterback, Joe Veltri, who graduated.

and Al Marchand, 180-pound junior from Baton Rouge, La. Coley They are Jimmy Coley, a 170-pound senior from El Dorado, Ark., played on defense most of last year, filling in for "iron man" Veltri on the only five plays Joe missed. He's reasonably fast and a good passer.

The rest of the probable starting backfield is Fred Anson, 155 pounds, senior from Ashland, Ky., and George Chumbley, 180 pounds, sophomore from Richmond, at halfbacks; and Joe Stump, 195 pounds, senior from Norton, Va., at fullback.

OTHER BACKS who will play a lot are Tommy Birge and Chris Holland from Episcopal High of Alexandria. Birge, 180-pound junior, would have been regular right halfback if he hadn't suffered a broken toe a couple of weeks ago when a teammate accidentally stepped on his foot.

It's in the middle of his line, at center and the guards, where Nugent believes his team is strongest.

At center, there is Joe Bernich, a 170-pound bully boy from New Orleans. Bernich is captain in the corps, and outranks every player on the team.

The guards are Weir Goodwin, 205-pound junior from Episcopal High of Alexandria, and Tommy Bonnett, 190-pound soph from Morrison, Va. Goodwin is considered the best lineman on the team. Another fellow who's likely to be in there a lot is Jerry Eggleston, a game 180-pound senior from Watertown, N. Y.

At tackle are a couple of 215-pound juniors, Jack Frankenberger, a Silver Spring, Md., boy, and Claude Eley from Suffolk, Va. Both played a lot last year. Backing them up is Ted Mariani, a 200-pound sophomore who didn't play much in his Gonzaga High days in Washington, but Nugent thinks he's a fine prospect.

The only experienced offensive end is Neal Petree, a 6-foot 2-inch, 185-pound junior whom Nugent developed at Hopewell, Va., High.

It was Petree who caught the pass which beat G. W. in the last quarter.

NUGENT IS TRYING to find an offensive running mate for Petree from among Bill Leck, 180-pound senior from Rockville Center, N. Y.; Ed Quisenberry, 185-pound junior from Roanoke; and Jones Felvey, 175-pound junior from Richmond. All of them played mostly on defense, with Quisenberry showing the most promise last year.

However, Nugent is plainly favoring young Felvey, who never played football before he came to VMI.

The Felveys of Richmond are a distinguished member of Virginia's horse-show set. While most of Jones' playmates were out on the corner sandlot playing football and baseball, Jones was learning rules of the bridle.

It seems that once Jones' horse fell out from under him, and Jones broke his collar bone and three ribs. Before medical help was summoned, he climbed back on his mount and, in the best tradition of the hunt, he completed his ride.

That's the kind of boy Nugent wants in his lineup when the Keydets tackle William and Mary in their opener Saturday. There are three other toughies on their slate, too: Virginia, Texas A. & M., and Georgia Tech. VMI is considered a better risk against their remaining foes, GW, Richmond, Catawba, Davidson, Citadel and Virginia Tech.

lead in the first inning, improved it to 3-0 in the fourth.

Bill Goodman struck the first blow for the Red Sox with a single to center in the opening inning, went to second while Williams was grounding into the second out, and romped home on Stephens' single to left.

Tebbetts Bats in Two Runs

The Red Sox packed three hits into their fourth inning, got two runs, and barely muffed another one. Stephens and Dropo whacked quick singles to center, and moved up on Doerr's sacrifice. Hutchinson discreetly walked Zarilla to fill the bases but met trouble in the person of Tebbetts.

A one-time Detroit hero, Tebbetts responded to the booes that now descended from the stands, and dumped a floating single into left center. Two runs romped home, and when Johnny Groth threw to an unprotected third base to head Zarilla off at that station, Zarilla fled for home. Hutchinson recovered the loose ball and fired to Swift at the plate. Zarilla was out, with Swift surviving a vicious rolling slide by Zarilla, who landed in the catcher's lap.

Parnell allowed the Tigers only five hits until the ninth, but he was getting superb support from his infield, which took him out of trouble in the second, fourth and fifth innings.

Parnell Gets Good Support.

The Tigers had men on second and third with one out in the second on a walk to Evers, Groth's single and a sacrifice, but got nothing out of it. Goodman grabbed Swift's smash and threw Evers out at home. Hutchinson was hit by a pitch that filled the bases for the Tigers but Lipon flied to Williams for the third out.

The Tigers couldn't get George Kell home in the third after he doubled to left with one out, and they got nothing out of the fourth which Kolloway opened with a single to right. Bobby Doerr took Parnell out of the inning with an incredible play on Hutchinson's drive over second base—a one-handed pickup and a backhand flip to Stephens, without taking his ball from his glove, for a force play.

Goodman came to Parnell's rescue in the fifth after Wertz was hit by a pitched ball. With two out he went into the air for a leaping catch of Groth's liner, and discovered it in the webbing of his glove. It was things like that, and Kinder, that beat the Tigers.

Some Answers Given To Puzzling Questions On Federal Job Rider

Every Federal employe has a question or two about that stiff rider to put most Government personnel actions on a temporary basis at least until next June 30. Here are a few of the questions and the best available answers at this time:

Q. Will it result in in-grade and automatic promotions being placed on a temporary basis as well as grade promotions?

A. No. That's the unofficial opinion of top officials. However, the Comptroller General will be asked for a ruling on this since the rider doesn't specify which promotions are to be restricted.

Q. If an employe now in Government is given a temporary transfer to a temporary defense job will he continue to be covered by the Civil Service Retiremnt System?

A. Yes. But if a person now outside of Government is appointed or reinstated to a temporary defense job, he won't be covered by the retirement system even though he has full Civil Service status. He will be under the Social Security System.

Q. Will the rider prevent those war service and temporary employes from obtaining Civil Service status under the President's order of a month ago?

A. No. Officials are of the opinion that the rider will have no bearing on the covering-in order.

Q. The rider provides that an employe can't be reinstated to a job or a higher grade or salary than he held when he was laid off through a reduction in force. Does this mean his salary, when he's reinstated, is "frozen" at his laid-off wage, or can he be promoted to a better job and salary after he has been reinstated?

A. Officials are inclined to believe he can be given a temporary promotion after he has been reinstated. But they aren't absolutely certain, and the Comptroller General will be asked to rule on the question.

Q. If a status employe is given a temporary transfer to a temporary job, will he lose his Civil Service status?

A. No.

Q. What job rights will he have if his temporary job is abolished?

A. None at present, but you can be sure of this—the Civil Service Commission will issue an order soon to guarantee him reemployment rights and to change its reduction-in-force regulations to treat him as a status employe in a status job.

Q. Will the rider cover jobs and agencies exempt from Civil Service such as the FBI, TVA, Atomic Energy, Central Intelligence and other such agencies?

A. Officials yesterday were of the opinion that it would under the broad "Federal Civil Service" wording of the rider. But again, the Comptroller General will be asked to rule on the question.

Senate-House conferees on the 17-billion-dollar supplemental money bill agreed to the controversial rider late Saturday despite the stout opposition of the Administration. They said it was aimed at preventing Federal salaries from becoming inflated during this emergency period. Administration officials contend it will hamper recruiting for defense jobs and lead to countless inequities and complications.

The conference report is slated to be considered by both the House and the Senate either today or tomorrow. Its approval is anticipated. The President is likely to denounce the rider and urge its repeal.

JOBS: The Naval Gun Factory here, this city's largest industrial establishment, is ready to expand. It will take on 300 production employes, mainly toolmakers and machinists, and another 200 will be hired before many weeks. The factory has about 8500 employes now compared with a World War II peak of 15,000 workers.

BOOMING: Uncle Sam hired more people during July than in any month since August, 1948. More than 18,000 temporary appointments alone were made in that month.

In addition, about 6000 former employes with Civil Service status were reinstated; 2000 transfers were made, and probational appointments were the highest in more than a year.

Most of the appointments were made in the defense agencies to blue-collar jobs.

1500 Hear Dr. Rustin In Farewell Sermon

Popular Pastor Leaving Here for New Congregation In Nashville, Tenn.

By Thomas Schlesinger
Post Reporter

A misty-eyed gathering of more than 1500 persons heard the Rev. John W. Rustin give his farewell sermon as minister of Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church yesterday.

Dr. Rustin

The 51-year-old pastor left the overflow assembly with his definition of the ideal church, and the admonition, "never, never, never try to stop your church from being liberal."

Telegrams, letters and spoken tributes from fellow ministers and church members swamped the minister on his final day as pastor of the largest Protestant congregation in the Washington area.

After a 14-year career here both as preacher and community leader, Dr. Rustin takes over his new pastorate next Sunday, the Belmont Methodist Church in Nashville, Tenn.

Church "Not Liberal Enough"

Doctor Rustin told the congregation, "the trouble with the church is that it is not liberal enough," and then spelled out what he thought the church of the future should be like.

"When the church becomes a real factor in the life of the people," he said, "first of all, it has vision and is not expending all its energy in defending creeds or standing on ancient dogmas.

"It should challenge the people to move beyond its warped emotions and deep-seated prejudices," he continued, "and it should always move into action."

His farewell to the congregation was both informal and humble:

"It has always been hard for me to say goodby," he said. "It is especially so now. These years as minister . . . have bound our family to all of you in such a way that we can never really say goodby . . . I could never have gone if I had known then the feeling I have now."

Colleagues Pay Tribute

Last night, four of Dr. Rustin's fellow ministers paid tribute to him at the church's regular family worship hour.

The Rev. Edward Hughes Pruden, minister of the First Baptist Church, called him "an outstanding Washington institution."

The Rev. Carl Heath Kopf, minister of the First Congregational Church, said Dr. Rustin reminded him of "Wordsworth's Happy Warrior, for we could always find him cheerfully and fearlessly fighting for a good cause."

The Rev. Clarence W. Cranford, minister of the Calvary Baptist Church, cited him as a man of "utter integrity."

The Rev. Oscar Blackwelder, pastor of the Luthern Church of the Reformation, said, "I love John Rustin for his courage, preaching ability, his keen sense of social consciousness and his dedication to Christianity."

Foundry Methodist Opens Parking Lot

Is the downtown parking problem destroying religion?

The Rev. Frederick Brown Harris, minister of the Foundry Methodist Church, said yesterday in announcing free parking for those attending Sunday services:

"From what I've heard, people lose more religion in 20 minutes cruising around looking for a parking space than I could get back in an hour's church service."

The lot, with space for 80 cars, is located at 15th and Church sts. nw. It will be free to Foundry parishioners on Sundays only.

New Silver Spring School Dedicated By Archbishop

More than 800 persons attended the dedication ceremonies for the $300,000 St. John's Parochial School, 10501 Georgia ave., Silver Spring, yesterday.

The Most Rev. Patrick O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, congratulated the Rev. Joseph T. Kennedy, pastor of St. John's parish, and told the overflow crowd: "Your contributions to this school are an investment in your eternal reward because you are helping to lead children to God."

Park Police Discover Woman Semiconscious

Park police patroling at the intersection of Bingham dr. and Beach dr. in Rock Creek Park yesterday at 6:30 p. m. found a woman identified as Mrs. Katherine Gill, 26, 916 16th st. nw., in a semiconscious condition.

She was treated at Emergency Hospital. Police said she appeared to be suffering from an overdose of sleeping pills. She was taken to Gallinger Hospital for mental observation.

Lawsuits Which Hold Up School Construction in Fairfax Fail to Deter Pupils as New High of 15,564 Enrolls

Classes Overcrowded As Court Action Defers New Building

By Elsie Carper
Post Reporter

When two Fairfax County residents filed a suit that halted construction of school buildings in the county, they ignored one thing:

No lawsuit can stop children from showing up and demanding seats in classes.

Whether or not the seats are there, the children appear.

This fall, schools in Fairfax County opened to 15,564 children, 2788 more than last year. The students filled 93 classrooms.

But over the summer months the County School Board was able to squeeze only enough money out of its operating fund to add one four-room school.

Last June county residents approved by 3 to 1 a $10,500,000 bond issue for new schools. The money was to provide 90 elementary and 42 high school classrooms for the white schools and nine elementary and nine high school rooms for the Negro schools.

A suit filed by two county residents—Charles Edward Gardner, sr., of Dranesville, and Paul E. Rhinehart, jr., of McLean—challenged the validity of the referendum. The sale of bonds was halted.

The suit was overruled in the county's Circuit Court but has been appealed to the Virginia Supreme Court. The county school board has been advised it may take months to settle the action. Until then, Fairfax will go without schools.

Unprepared Last Year

The county was unprepared to house her school children last year. Classes met in Quonset huts, a tar paper building, in rooms partitioned from auditoriums, a rented room in a trailer camp, in libraries, churches and basement storage rooms.

This year the County once again has had to fall back on these expedients and to them add other substandard facilities.

Children will go to classes in lodge and community halls, converted rooms in apartment houses and in one case to a room in a private home. Still there is not enough space.

Most first and second graders are on part-time and in some schools half-time instruction goes through the fourth grade.

Reshuffling Classes

County School Superintendent W. T. Woodson does not yet know how many children are on part-time. He has ordered principals to shuffle and reshuffle classes in an effort to get all the children in.

Even without the stumbling block of the suit, schools authorized by the referendum probably would not have been ready this year. But there would have been relief in sight.

To Superintendent Woodson and his staff of teachers, the intolerable thing about the present situation is that there is no relief anywhere.

At the Forestville school seven grades are crowded in a six-room building. Fifth and seventh grade students share the small partitioned auditorium. A basement cafeteria adjoins the lavatories. The library is on a stair landing, and the principal's office is in the hall. The bond issue would have provided Forestville a new ten-classroom building with all modern educational facilities.

442 At McLean

The elementary school at McLean, designed to hold 300 students, has an enrollment of 442. Two classes share the aduitorium. A third class meets in two small rooms that were the library. The fifth grade is in the basement where the water backs up in a heavy rain.

The Oak Street School in Falls Church, a 16-classroom building with a capacity of 420 students, had an enrollment of 540 when it was opened two years ago. Last week 991 children were in class there. An additional 261 children attend a four-room annex at Graham Road. All grades through the fourth are on part-time.

The only school construction under way in the county is an eight-room addition to the Annandale Elementary School and an eight-classroom building near the Willston Housing Development at Seven Corners.

When bills for these projects are paid, the county will have used up its last cent for school buildings.

In prospect is $600,000 in State funds, but that money, too, is legally ensnared. Holding it up are the pending suits filed by the towns of Falls Church and Alexandria to annex portions of Fairfax County land.

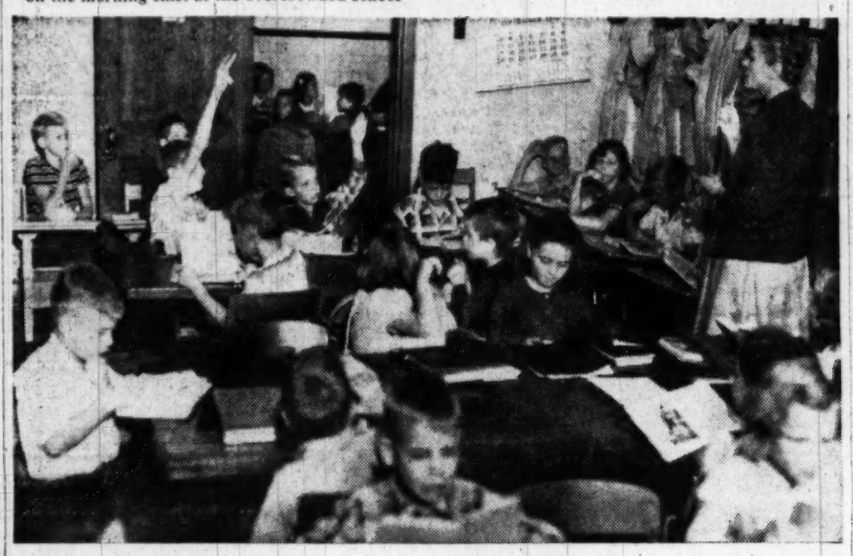
When and if the money is cleared it will be sufficient only for one new elementary school.

Screen-Climbing Thief Takes $250 in Jewelry

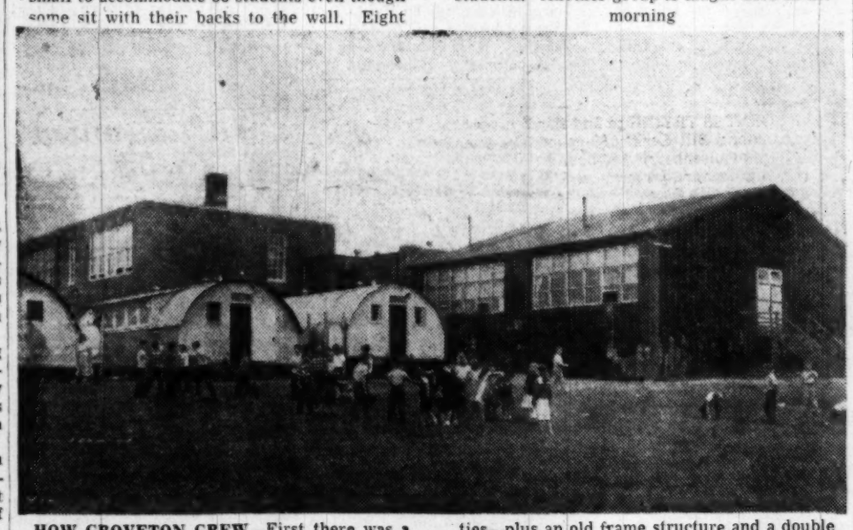
An agile, thin thief climbed the eight-foot screening of the M and N Sales Store, 1236 7th st. nw., squirmed through a nine-inch opening between the webbing and store front roof and then made off with from $200 to $250 in jewelry.

The owner, Norman Wertlieb, said a brick was used to break the show window. Several trays were emptied of cigarette lighters and watches.

CHANGING OF THE SHIFTS—All grades through the fourth are on part time at Fairfax County's Oak Street School. Youngsters on the morning shift at the overcrowded school stand in line (at left) waiting to get on the bus to go home, while students on the afternoon shift (right) file off the bus and into the school

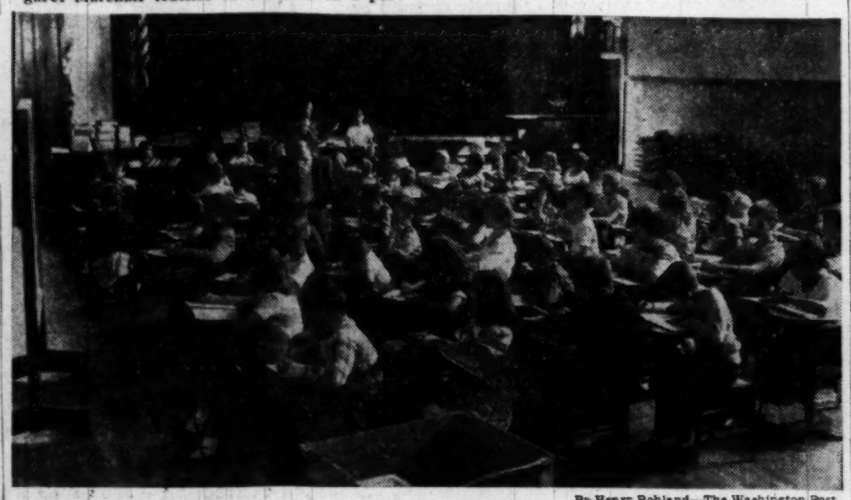


CORRIDOR OUTCASTS—Mrs. G. A. Groschan's fourth grade at Oak Street School meets in the patrol boys' room. The space is too small to accommodate 36 students even though some sit with their backs to the wall. Eight of the brightest children are banished to the poorly lighted corridor. The children put up with this three hours a day. All are part-time students. Another group is taught here in the morning



HOW GROVETON GREW—First there was a red brick schoolhouse. Then came the children. When they spilled out of the building, Quonset huts and a temporary tar paper shack (at right) were added. Even with these facilities—plus an old frame structure and a double Quonset (not shown)—the school has been forced to put children on part time. Groveton would get an addition under the bond issue

PULLMAN CLASSROOM—There's an upper and a lower section in this seventh-grade class at Forestville School but it has nothing to do with the standing of the pupils. Mrs. Margaret Marshall teaches 35 students in a partitioned-off section of the auditorium that includes the stage. Forestville crowds 249 students in space meant for 180. The bond issue would have provided a new school



By Henry Rohland—The Washington Post

TANDEM SCHOOL—Two classes share the auditorium which also doubles as the main corridor in the packed and jammed school at McLean. Mrs. Margaret Grant teaches the sixth grade (foreground) and Mrs. Laura Jett the fourth grade (section nearer stage)

Disputed Light A Traffic Need, Keneipp Asserts

Plans Inspection Today, But Gives No Promises of Making a Change

The controversial traffic light at 14th and D sts. sw., has a supporter in Traffic Director George E. Keneipp.

Keneipp returned to Washington yesterday after a West Coast conference of motor vehicle administrators to find that in his absence a hullabaloo had been stirred up over the new light.

He said the need for the light had been obvious for several years and that numerous petitions had been received from Agriculture Department and Bureau of Engraving and Printing workers saying they could not cross 14th st. on foot or make a left turn off the southbound lane of 14th st. in their cars during rush hours.

Furthermore, the light proposal was placed before the District Commissioners and received their full approval before installation was begun. He plans to view the situation today, but is making no promises of any change.

As for a suggestion that an alley running through the Bureau of Engraving and Printing grounds between 14th and 15th sts. be used, he said this had little practicality for two reasons:

1. It belongs to the Federal Government which has shown no indication of relinquishing it.

2. Bureau vehicles make almost continuous use of the alley in delivering supplies sufficient to keep up with the Government's 'round the clock printing of money and stamps.

Keneipp also said the signal was essential—not only for Government workers—but also for the many sightseeing buses and limousines which discharge passengers at the Bureau.

It may be hard for Virginia commuters to accept, but "they can't go 50 miles an hour down 14th st. There must be signal lights to control traffic from high speed areas and send it out in waves, breaking it into slower speeds," he said.

Within Crosswalk

Pedestrian Is Hurt in Hit-Run Case

District police last night were looking for a car which knocked over a pedestrian and then disappeared.

They broadcast a lookout for a "blue Plymouth with D.C. tags" after Andrew Tabathka of 1102 L st. nw. was injured as he walked across the intersection at 10th st. and Massachusetts ave. nw. about 9:20 p.m. Tabathka was within the crosswalk lines, police said.

Tabathka was brought unconscious to Emergency Hospital with a deep depression in his head. Doctors placed him on the critical list. After he regained consciousness, however, Tabathka said the depression was an old wound which had been healed. He was treated and released.

Two Piney Point, Md., sailors and a Great Mills, Md., man were injured in a head-on collision early yesterday on Route 249, one mile east of Tall Timbers, Md.

Sailors Hurt

The sailors, both employed in the disbursing office at the Naval Annex at Piney Point, were Yeoman 1/c William James Devlin, 24, and Yeoman 1/c Walter C. Miller, 19. Maryland State police identified Devlin as the driver of one car.

Both were admitted to the Naval Hospital at Bethesda with possible skull fractures and severe lacerations. Their condition last night was listed as satisfactory.

The driver of the second car, Kenny J. Shrey, 35, received severe lacerations of the head and body. He was admitted to St. Mary's Hospital in Leonardtown, Md., for observation and X-rays. His condition was listed as not serious.

No charges were placed immediately, as State police continued their investigation.

District police early yesterday took a motorist who admitted running through a red light at his word and led him and his sick passenger to the hospital. When the party arrived at Providence Hospital, the passenger declined treatment.

So the police went ahead with their first inclination and issued a ticket on the red light charge to Dennis L. Marshall, 42, 240 14th pl. ne.

Their attention was directed to Marshall when his vehicle collided with a Capital Transit Co. bus operated by Charles A. Grannell, 34, 3059 30th st. se., at 1 a. m. at Pennsylvania ave. and 4th st. se.

In an earlier accident at 11:15 p. m. Saturday, one man received a possible fractured right leg in a collision almost on the doorstep of the Second Precinct stationhouse.

The injured man was John Gibson, 63, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who was thrown from a car driven by his brother, Major Gibson, 60, 504 M st. nw., when Gibson's vehicle collided with one driven by David L. Levin, 18, 852 South Irving st., Arlington, Va. The accident occurred at the corner of 6th st. and New York ave. nw. where the stationhouse is located.

The elder Gibson was admitted to Casualty Hospital, where his condition was described as good. A second passenger in Gibson's car, Ina Harris, 50, 1356 Wallach pl. nw., was treated at Casualty for face lacerations.

Policeman Injured

A Metropolitan Police motorcycle officer was injured yesterday trying to avoid running over a small child.

Pvt. Charles M. Blackburn, 38, of Burtonsville, Md., was escorting a party of President's Cup Regatta officials to the Willard Hotel when the child, who was not identified, ran out in front of his motorcycle on Ohio dr. near the Hains Point clubhouse.

As the policeman swerved, he lost control and slid to the ground. He was admitted to Emergency Hospital with abrasions to the left arm and a possible fracture of the hip.

'Third Man' Shot By Policeman in Row Over Arrest

The unwanted "third man" who allegedly intervened in a late Saturday night arrest yesterday was in Freedmen's Hospital recovering from a gunshot wound in the left hip.

The alleged middleman, Glover Taylor, 26, of 1219 Holbrook st. ne., is under police guard, charged with assault with a dangerous weapon.

The fracas occurred at New York ave. and North Capitol st. as Pvt. James E. Dawn of the Second Precinct was leading a juvenile to the police call box. Dawn said Taylor grabbed his nightstick and started beating him over the arm and wrist.

Dawn said he tried to defend himself, releasing his hold on the youngster, who escaped. Then Dawn stepped back, pulled out his revolver and fired once, hitting Taylor in the hip. Dawn was treated at Freedmen's Hospital for bruises and released.

The juvenile was rearrestd shortly afterward on a charge of being drunk

In Alexandria

Rape Suspect Shot Fleeing From Alley

Alexandria police yesterday arrested a 29-year-old laborer on a charge of rape after an early-morning chase in which the suspect was shot in the arm.

The man, James S. Smith, 607 North Columbus st., Alexandria, was treated at Alexandria Hospital, then jailed pending a hearing in Police Court today at 10 a. m.

He was charged with the rape of a 39-year-old married woman from Lynchburg, Va., who was visiting relatives in Alexandria. Smith denied the charge, contending the woman willingly submitted in an alley in the rear of the 700 block of Wythe st.

Alexandria police were called by a woman residing near the alley, who complained of screaming and cursing. Three policemen found the woman lying in the alley with her clothes disarranged.

They said Smith, who was near her, fled when he saw the police. Pvt. Donald Thomas said he fired two warning shots, then winged Smith with the third.

The woman did not require hospital treatment, although police said she was in a state of shock. Police said the contents of her purse were strewn about the alley, indicating she had put up a struggle.

St. John's Holds Picnic

About 1500 parents and other relatives of St. John's College High School students attended the annual Family Day picnic yesterday on the site of the new college buildings at 27th st. and Military rd. nw.

Materials Ban May Kill Aid, Hoffman Says

By the United Press

Marshall Plan Director Paul G. Hoffman has warned Congress it may wreck the entire foreign aid program if it bans shipment of so-called strategic materials to Iron Curtain countries, it was disclosed yesterday.

The Senate wrote the ban into an amendment to the pending $17,000,000,000 defense appropriation bill.

A high official of Hoffman's agency—the Economic Cooperation Administration—said Hoffman made his views known in a "tough" letter to Senate-House conferees who are working on the bill's final draft. This official added that foreign aid officials will appear before a House committee today and "open up the whole thing so the people can have a look at it."

House Conferees rejected the amendment Saturday after receipt of Hoffman's letter.

The ECA official pointed to the language barring aid to nations which not only send arms but which ship "articles which may be used in the manufacture of arms or military materials."

"If 'military material' consisted of trucks, tanks and locomotives," he said, "you'd have to take a complete inventory of General Motors Corp. and the Baldwin Locomotive Works and list everything, including screw drivers, hammers and saws that they use there."

"The ECA would have no discretion. It would have to cut off all aid to any country that sent any item on that list behind the Iron Curtain."

He said the proviso would either stop almost all East-West trade in Europe, or end U. S. Marshall Plan aid. In either case, he added, the American people would lose billions of dollars.

Lie Expected To Continue in Top U. N. Post

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Sept. 17 (U.P.).—Trygve Lie, who has said repeatedly that he is not a candidate for reelection, appeared certain tonight to continue in office as Secretary General of the United Nations when his current term expires next February 2.

The General Assembly, which opens at Flushing Meadows on Tuesday, has been unable to produce a likely successor to the 54-year-old Norwegian diplomat in a full year of delegation discussion.

As a result, it was expected to circumvent the Charter provision calling for an election for the U. N.'s top post every five years and ask Lie to stay in office, probably for an additional two years, without an election.

The difficulty in replacing Lie is to find a successor acceptable to both Russia and the West. None mentioned to date has that unique qualification.

For that matter, neither does Lie. He has been a frequent target of Western editorials, charging him with pro-Communist sentiments. He has been assailed by Moscow radio and press for pro-Western leanings.

More vital to the issue, however, was the promise of Nationalist China to veto his appointment, which must be approved by the Security Council, because of his open support for the seating of the Chinese Communists. But Dr. Tingfu F. Tsiang, chief Nationalist delegate, has said that he would not oppose Lie's continuance in office for another two years.

It was problematical whether Lie—who gained the post originally as a compromise candidate in 1946—would accept such an arrangement. The Norwegian might consider it a polite face-slapping to be involved in another compromise situation after having served five years in the office.

One on the Aisle—

Meet Nellie Wood, A Double-G Girl

By Richard L. Coe

TONIGHT'S THE NIGHT Neille Wood becomes a double-G girl again. A Government girl by day, she's a Gayety girl by night.

You all know Nellie, though you might not know her name nor much about her. She's the head usher at the Gayety and stands just inside the house each night, telling you which aisle, right, left, upstairs or main floor, to go after the doorman has torn your ticket.

By day Nellie's a Government gal in one of those hush-hush agencies just across the Potomac. Which it is I couldn't pry out of Nellie, but she says her daytime self is as anonymous as her job. Nellie's always loved the theater and she works every night and most matinees both to get some variety in the usual Government gal's existence and for the pleasure of being paid to go to the theater.

Nellie's in her thirties, I'd say; she's always spruce-looking; efficiently pleasant. She wears her dark brown hair fairly short and her longish face usually has a pleasing smile.

Though is means a workday that lasts from eight in the morning till after 11 most nights, Nellie finds the job worthwhile because it takes her out of the humdrum Government routine. "I enjoy meeting the public. You'd be surprised how pleasant most people are. Maybe it's because they're coming to enjoy themselves, but they're usually in awfully good humor when they come to the theater. I've gotten to know quite a few of the Gayety and National regulars.

Once in a great while, you do come across one or two impossible people. One night last year, for instance, two ladies—I'll call them that—were put into the wrong seats by one of our ushers. When the people came along with the rightful seat stubs, those ladies flatly refused to move. Not even the manager could get them out. We didn't call the police, though we could have. Later, on a trolley, I met the two girls whose seats they rightfully were and they were surprisingly nice about their disappointment. It just showed how decent people can be.

Others in the Corps

Gayety ushering jobs work in shifts, Monday-Wednesday and Friday and Tuesday-Thursday and Saturday. The girls are paid 2 bucks a night (less than Head Usher Wood) and are mostly from governmental and university circles. Davie Rogers, the girl narrator who is doing such a fine job in "Faith of Our Fathers," has been a Gayety regular, for instance.

Nellie's a bit surprised to find herself in the head usher spot, for her friend, Ray Gould, is one of her helpers, though she once was the National's head usher. Ray, small, cheerful and vocative, had the top job at the National and hired Nellie a few seasons before the house closed. But being chief of the corps takes more time and worry than Ray wants to give it, so she's quite content now to work under Nellie in order to keep up with the shows without the headaches.

A college graduate, Mrs. Wood (her 13-year-old son lives with her parents in Florida) taught for some years, but during the war came to the better-paying jobs of Washington. She likes it here and living alone, finds her double-duty day a crackerjack way of supporting her son and keeping her hours busy and stimulating.

So now you know something about that crisp lady in black and white who'll be welcoming you to Celeste Holm and "Affairs of State" tonight at the start of the Gayety season. She'll be making you smile right back at her.

AFTER-THEATER spots also will be getting some of the trade stimulated by the Gayety's reopening . . . The Statler's newly redecorated Embassy Room unveils itself tonight to the music of onetime cartoonist Xavier Cugat . . . The Raleigh's Pall Mall Room is spruced up with a new setting . . . And the electric Pearl Bailey takes over at the Merry-Land . . . Be sure to get Pearl to sing those two numbers with which she captured "Arms and the Girl" away from the stars, "There Must Be Something Better Than Love" and "Nothin' for Nothin'."

JOSE FERRER in town and tomorrow morning he'll tell an assembly of Woodrow Wilson High students of "Cyrano de Bergerac and the World Today" . . . Ferrer has just completed filming the Rostand drama for Producer Stanley Kramer.

THE WASHINGTON Film Council resumes its meetings Wednesday at 12:30 at the YWCA, 17th and K sts . . . Floyde Brooker of the Office of Education, will talk of visual education in the Far East, from which he has just returned, and Arch Mercey will discuss "What does the Defense program mean for Washington Visual Workers." . . . Mrs. Marian S. Jarnagin, REpublic 4142, ext. 6073, is taking reservations.

"OF MICE AND MEN," which got a neat headline the other day over Lucia Brown's inviting recipes on cheese (both like it), goes into its second week tonight at Arena Stage, with Lester Rawlins, Henry Oliver and Dorothea Jackson heading the able cast.

NEW ROLE. Sibyl Bowan's comedy disguises have made her a vaudeville favorite from F st. to the farthest outposts of the wartime Camp Shows. Saturday in New York's St. Patrick's Cathedral, Miss Bowan became a real-life bride, white bridal veil and all. She's now the wife of Wall st.'s Thomas F. Stapleton

Society Shows Its Legal Aspect

By Elizabeth Maguire

SUNDAY ENTERTAINING WAS highly legal yesterday. Judges and lawyers from all over were feted at receptions and teas, as conventions closed and opened on an unusually busy day.

It was the closing day for the annual conventions held by the National Association of Women Lawyers and Phi Delta Delta Legal Sorority, and it was the opening day for the joint meetings of the Canadian and American Bar Associations.

Women lawyers from the Canadian Bar, the American Bar, the National Association of Women Lawyers, as well as the wives of the delegates to the American Bar convention, were honored at a reception given by the Women's Bar Association of the District at the Carlton Hotel from 5 to 7 p. m.

In the receiving line were Miss Marguerite Rawalt, a former president of the Federal Bar Association; Mrs. Olive Faircloth, president of the Women's Bar Association of the District; Mrs. Sara Perrin, vice president; Miss Ivy Lee Buchanan, treasurer; Miss Mary Bakshian, corresponding secretary, and Miss Ruth Major, recording secretary.

To honor women judges who are members of their association, the National Association of Women Lawyers gave a luncheon earlier in the day at the Carlton. Mrs. J. Helen Slough, president, presided. Judge Burnita Shelton Matthews addressed the gathering, and Miss Pearle Mount was toastmistress.

Notables attending included Judge Edith H. Cockrill, Judge Nadine Gallagher and Judge Ellen K. Raedy.

AT THE SAME TIME lawyers attending these various conventions were invited to a tea in the Cathedral Close by the Bishop of Washington and Mrs. Angus Dun. Guests were ushered into the Bishop's residence and out into the terraced garden, which for all the world looks like England.

Here the Bishop and his wife received with their guests of honor, Sir Norman and Lady Birkett, who are here for the meetings of the American and Canadian Bar Associations. Justice Birkett has been a judge on the King's Bench, division high court, since 1941 when he was knighted. He is also a former member of Great Britain's Parliament.

Tea, coffee and punch were served in the dining room from a long table covered with lace and centered with a bouquet of garden flowers. Outside, guests balanced plates and had chats in the sun while they admired the hilly view and gardens of neat little flowers in pink, lavender and white.

Those attending included Harold J. Gallagher, president of the American Bar Association, and Mrs. Gallagher, and the president of the Canadian Bar Association, A. N. Carter, and Mrs. Carter. Also, Associate Justice and Mrs. Thomas Campbell Clark and Associate Justice and Mrs. Harold H. Burton.

Earlier in the afternoon the delegates to the conventions were invited to a special service at the Cathedral held at 4 o'clock, presided over by the Bishop and followed by a tour of the Cathedral grounds.

A FORMER PRESIDENT of the American Bar Association, George Maurice Morris, and Mrs. Morris also entertained yesterday during the hours of 5 to 7. Many who attended the party given by the Bishop and Mrs. Dun were guests of the Morrises as well.

Mr. and Mrs. Morris entertained the day before for some 750 members of the tax division of the American Bar Association, and yesterday their guests, numbering just 450, were members of the House of Delegates of the American Bar Association and the Council of the Canadian Bar Association.

The host and hostess received in the garden of their beautiful house, The Lindens, on Kalorama rd. Sir Godfrey Russell Vick, president of the Bar Council of England, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. Morris for the week, helped them receive. Guests included presidents of the American Bar Association and the Canadian Bar Association and their wives, delegates of both groups and Justices of the United States Supreme Court and their wives.

PARTY PARADE

MR. AND MRS. DOUGLAS A. STALKER gave a brunch party yesterday at the Willard Hotel for Miss Marilyn Lee O'Neill, Queen of the President's Cup Regatta. Vice Admiral Merlin O'Neill, Commandant of the United States Coast Guard and Mrs. O'Neill, parents of the Queen, and her escort, Lieut. Col. Robert F. Scott, USMC, were among the guests.

Others included John A. Remon, honorary president of the Regatta, and Mrs. Remon; Edward Baltz, president of the Regatta Association, and Mrs. Baltz; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris, Mrs. R. Parker Dove, Miss Jane Lingo, 1949 Regatta Queen; and attendants of this year's Queen, Miss Jo Nelson, Miss Anne Willis Cates, Miss Alice Varian, Miss Barbara Silliman, Miss Virginia Summerlin, Miss Joyce Clifford and Miss Clay Keene Bernard.

THE AMBASSADOR OF CANADA and Mrs. Hume Wrong will receive a number of Canadian delegates to the joint meeting of the American and Canadian Bar Associations today from 6 to 8 p. m. at the embassy residence on Rock Creek Drive. Among the invited guests will be two sons of the Prime Minister, the Rt. Hon. Louis S. St. Laurent, and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Jean-Paul St. Laurent and Mr. and Mrs. Renault St. Laurent of Quebec City.

DATEBOOK DATA

Tall Girls Spoil Their Looks by Bad Posture

Exercise 1: Straighten

Second Day of Winifred's two weeks' beauty program.

By Ann Lawrence

"SHE STOOPS TO conquer" was never meant to apply to posture!

Yet many women who might otherwise be attractive and graceful spoil their entire appearance with round shoulders, a slouched back and an S-shaped spine.

Although bad posture habits are by no means limited to tall girls, many above-the-average-in-height women do slump in an effort to whittle away a few inches. All they succeed in doing is throwing themselves off balance, making their clothes hang poorly—and adding years to their appearance. A strong, straight back, an erect head and lifted shoulders are a sign of youth.

Did you know that proper posture can actually reduce, in measurement, your waist and abdomen? The correct stance lifts those muscles in place, expands your chest, pares inches from your midriff. Disbelieving this, Winifred measured herself. Here are her "before" and "after" measurements:

Before	After
Bust: 37 in.	Bust: 38 in.
Waist: 29 in.	Waist: 28 in.
Hips: 40½ in.	Hips: 40 in.

AND HERE ARE two simple exercises Winifred learned to improve her posture:

Exercise 1: Stand with feet 18 inches apart, hands clasped behind your back, with arms extended full length. Now bend forward from the waist, keeping your head up, your shoulders flat, until your body is at right angles to your hips. Force shoulders back and keep arms and hands extended throughout the exercise. Return to upright position. Repeat 10 times.

Exercise 2: On your knees, your head held up and back, clasp your hands back of your body and stretched downward. Now bend slowly forward, keeping your head up and back flat until you are sitting on your heels. Drop your head toward the floor and relax. Keeping your head down, round your back and pull in the abdominal muscles. Now slowly raise your body. The movements begin at the lowest vertebrae. Slowly lift your thighs away from your heels at the same time.

Aware now that posture was a dominant part of her personality, Winifred determined to add these exercises to her daily program, to assure herself of the erect, agile body, the light, elastic step that is the mark of a poised, up-to-the minute woman.

Tomorrow: An Easy Way to Reduce.

Cakes and Cookies Make Good Travellers if Packed With Plenty of Know-How

My girl friend wants me to send her some cookies and some cakes while she is away at college in Virginia. I would like to know if there is a way to send these things so they will stay fresh and the cake not be mashed up?

J. A. Williams, Washington.

Let's take up cakes first, then cookies. Loaf cakes travel better than layer cakes, but both will be sure of a safe journey if you pack them right. Remember that powdered sugar icing, made with butter or margarine, will stay intact better than icings that harden on standing.

A good way to pack a cake is with a layer of popcorn all around as a buffer. Place an inch layer of it in the bottom of a stiff pasteboard box. Put the cake on a stiff piece of cardboard and into the box. The latter should be large enough to leave a 2-or-3-inch space on all sides and at top.

Cover top and sides of cake well with wax paper, then fill in empty spaces around it with dry popcorn. This is light but will prevent movement of the cake in the box. Put a layer of popcorn on top, then cover with wax paper. Close, wrap, and tie securely. Write address on the top of the box and have postmaster mark it "Perishable." It's a good idea to send it "Special Delivery"—"Air Mail," too, if this is quicker to the town where her school is.

A tin box is the best kind to keep cookies from getting stale. However, you can use cardboard nicely, wrapping the cookies in moisture-proof cellophane to protect them. A flat box or one of shoebox size seems to be the most satisfactory type.

Wrapping each cookie separately in cellophane makes a de luxe pack that insures freshness and prevents breakage. Or you can make a stack of cookies of the same size and wrap them together. A shallow bed of shredded cellophane or wax paper can be put on the bottom of the box, with a sheet of wax paper on top of it.

Line box with waxed paper or with aluminum foil. (The latter permits folding together in a secure airtight manner over the cookies.) Place the wrapped cookies in the box, surrounding them with shredded cellophane. Close and tie box, wrap in corrugated cardboard, then in wrapping paper and tie securely. Have this marked "Perishable," too, and send "Special" if possible.

DEAR ANNE:

About a recent question on stools to be used in the bathtub: When I called the heating and plumbing department of a big mail-order store here, the salesman suggested a milking stool from their farm store. A friend bought one for me for $1.75. It is stainless steel with gray enameled legs and red enameled top. Sitting on a rubber mat, it does not scratch the tub. A plastic bowl cover on the seat makes it a more comfortable one when wet. Being small—12 inches high—it is ideal for both tub and small bathroom and quite an asset for dressing as well.

DEAR ANNE:

While living in Washington, I found your column very helpful. I have wondered whether you have any publication covering the suggestions as to dry cleaning various stains, refinishing furniture, or the other useful household hints. If so, please let me know the price.

Miss I. S., Lakewood, Ohio.

Sorry, but we haven't issued leaflets on these subjects. You can get one on stain removal from the Superintendent of Documents, U. S. Government Printing Office, Washington 25, D. C., by sending the sum of 10 cents. Check with your Ohio State Extension Service. They may issue a bulletin on furniture refinishing and some of the other household subjects in which you are interested.

Blended Colors, Fabrics In Sweaters and Skirts

The popular matched sweater and skirt appear in a smart new guise this year. The fine imported cashmere sweaters are paired with beautiful plaid or patterned tweeds in colors that blend with, or pick up, the color of the sweater.

It looks newer and more interesting than the conventional identical matches although the latter should be a basic part of every college wardrobe. But for the sweater collector—and what college girl isn't?—these lovely Scotch tweed skirts and blended cashmere sweaters are a connoisseur's delight.

Homemakers Prefer Blond

According to a recent survey made by Retailing Daily, blond wood finishes are the most popular with furniture buyers. They received a rating of 75 percent. Last year, however, they hit 84 percent. A natural wood finish comes next in popularity, with Cordovan running a poor third. The survey showed that buyers are keenly aware of the finish and its importance in protecting and adding beauty to furniture.

British Make Big Strides on Recovery Road

LONDON, Sept. 17. (AP).—A year after devaluation, Britain is making big strides toward recovery, but the question is asked: How much of it is due to devaluation itself, how much to other factors?

Britons look better dressed than any time since the war. There are more goods in the shops and more food, although meat, fats, sugar and tea are still rationed.

Prices are higher, too. Even without the complications of the Korean war and rearmament, officials admit the country must produce more and more to hold its gains.

One of the most striking gains has been in the increase of its gold and dollar reserves. The low point just before devaluation of the pound from $4.03 to $2.80 last September 18, was $1,340,000,000. By last July 1, they had risen more than a billion dollars to $2,422,000,000.

"There is no reason to believe the present upward trend will be reversed," a Treasury spokesman says.

But the biggest thing, both British and American officials agree, has been Britain's sharp 25 percent cut in dollar spending.

Britain and the sterling area lopped 700 million dollars off their annual dollar buying rate, knocking it down from $2,600,000,000 to $1,900,000,000.

One American economist here estimates the increase in British gold and dollar reserves was due 80 percent to less dollar spending and 20 percent to greater exports to dollar areas.

Cheapening of the pound meant Britain could sell cheaper for dollars, but that she must sell 40 percent more to earn the same number of them.

The value of manufactured exports has increased 5 percent since devaluation, but the cost of imported raw materials has soared 25 percent.

There has been a similar rise in prices of imported foodstuffs, but the cost-of-living index, based on minimum requirements, is up only slightly.

Wage rates have gone up less than one percent since devaluation. But the eight million-member Trades Union Congress recently refused to continue its voluntary wage-freezing policy. Many unions are pressing for pay hikes.

'Gill Joint' Raid Nets Vice Squad 10, But 15 Escape

The arrival of Police Vice Squad raiders early yesterday scattered 25 men spending a social evening at 1214 U st. nw.

Ten who failed to escape through windows and a rear door were charged with disorderly conduct. Each forfeited $5 collateral.

Lieut. Roy Blick, head of the Vice Squad, termed the spot a "gill joint" and said he believed the raid interrupted a dice game. Since no paraphernalia of chance was left behind, no gambling charges were placed.

Suspect in Dice Game Slaying Surrenders

James Nathaniel Thompson, 21, 494 Clarks ct. sw., surrendered to District police yesterday for questioning in the stabbing death of Fire Department Pvt. Clarence Toye Friday night.

He will appear at the coroner's inquest today at 11:30 a. m.

Sen. Malone Says 'Cabal' 'Out To Get' MacArthur

By The Associated Press

Senator Malone (R., Nev.) said yesterday that a State Department cabal is "out to get" Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

Implying that Secretary of State Acheson heads the anti-MacArthur group, Malone told an NBC television audience he believes Acheson himself will not last as a Cabinet member for more than 60 days.

Malone said he thinks President Truman's selection of Gen. George C. Marshall to be Secretary of Defense is only part of a plan to undermine MacArthur's position as Far Eastern commander.

Three Injured As Plane Crashes In Montgomery

Three persons were injured in the crash landing of a private plane at 5:30 p. m. yesterday off Maryland State Route 240 between Thompson's Corner and Hyattstown in Montgomery County.

Witnesses/ said the craft, a single-engine Stinson, apparently developed engine trouble and attempted an emergency landing on the farm of Maynard L. Fink.

As the pilot, Howard C. Drake, 909 Highland dr., Silver Spring, got close to the ground, he spotted high tension wires and made a sharp U-turn from the level land the plane was heading for and landed instead on an inclined stretch.

The plane lost its left wheel, causing the nose to dig in. The engine was driven back into the fuselage, observers said.

Mrs. Clara L. Brown, 28, of 1255 Rockville pike, Rockville, a passenger, was admitted to Suburban Hospital for laceration of the nose, possible back injury and shock. Her husband, Robert Brown, 30, was treated for minor bruises.

Brown is employed by the Tolson-Devlin Co. of Bethesda, landscape architects, and the plane is owned by the firm. It took off from Congressional Airport.

Trinity Episcopal Hall Dedicated By Bishop Dun

Trinity Episcopal Church's $150,000 parish hall was dedicated yesterday by the Right Rev. Angus Dun, Bishop of Washington.

More than 600 persons heard Dun describe the structure at 7005 Piney Branch rd. nw. as "a vestibule into the church; that is, it brings people into the church, and the events inside of it have a definite relation to what happens inside the church."

The Bishop was assisted by the rector, the Rev. Robert S. Tronbath. Music was supplied by the church's combined 60-voice junior and senior choirs and Soloists Wilson Ewart, baritone of the Australian Embassy, and Robert Gasser, a trumpeter from the National Symphony Orchestra.

Progressives Hit U.S. on Korea War As Rogge Objects

CHICAGO, Sept. 17 (AP).—The Progressive Party today issued a policy statement blaming United States "big business and big brass" for the Korean war. It was challenged promptly by a party leader, O. John Rogge, former Assistant U. S. Attorney General.

The policy statement, by the party's national committee, lumped together Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Secretary of the Navy Matthews and Maj. Gen. Orvil Anderson as having stated the aims of American businessmen and military leaders.

"The aims are," it said, "the launching of a 'preventive war' of aggression against the Soviet Union and China, the suppression of the liberation movements of the colonial people of Asia and Africa, and the 'pacification' of the entire world under the might of American arms."

Rogge, a member of the national committee, introduced a resolution asking for a special convention to reconsider all foreign policy statements since the founding of the party. The resolution said, in part, that the assertion American business is to blame for the Korean war "is not true" and "the American people will not accept. They ought not accept it."

The resolution was rejected, 41 to 2.

Sen. Hickenlooper Cancels Objection To Cohen for U. N.

Senator Hickenlooper (R., Iowa) said yesterday he is withdrawing his unexplained opposition to confirmation of Benjamin V. Cohen of New York to be one of the 10 members of the American delegation to the United Nations.

Hickenlooper objected to Cohen's unanimous confirmation by the Senate Friday night. Nine others, headed by Warren R. Austin, chief delegate, were confirmed without debate.

ACREAGE, SALE 75

MARYLAND

500 Acres—100 Acres Already Sold For Development
This acreage is located in the zone of the new South Capitol St. Bridge. This bridge is operating now with the capacity of 50,000 automobiles a day. This acreage is only about 12 min. to the White House. It will be the greatest traffic center around Washington, and where there's traffic centers there comes shopping centers, and to show you what developing the land will do to improve the value of the acreage, when I developed Chevy Chase, D. C., land that I paid $3000 an acre for in the shopping zone is now worth a million dollars an acre. There seems no reason why the same increased values should not prevail in this Southeast section. If you compare values with the shopping centers of the Virginia end of the bridges across the river, all of that today is worth a million dollars an acre. When I was bringing milk from Baileys Cross Roads and was a White House milk man, it seems to the best of my memory that the acreage was worth only a few hundred dollars an acre. You might wonder why I don't subdivide this ground. I am in my 94th year and this is a young man's job. Any young man who has the working capital of $50,000 cash and some experience as a subdivider could certainly handle this proposition. There are millions in subdividing this ground. You can reach me at my home, WO. 0933, Fulton R. Gordon, owner; Brokers' attention.

'How to Be Deliriously Happy'

Stop Fretting, You'll Jostle Your Pancreas

EDITOR'S NOTE: Please don't take the "Foible Gompkin" method for happiness too seriously, gentle reader. This is satire—broad and exuberant—intended only for chuckles plus horse laughs.

It is a burlesque, in its own fashion, of all the "inspirational" and "how to" books of modern times—the latest imperfect guide to the "perfect life."

Ira Wallach, the author, is one of a vanishing breed: the literate humorist. He has written for the best magazines and is author of "The Horn and the Roses."

These articles are selected from the recent book, "How to Be Deliriously Happy."

By Ira Wallach

CHAPTER ONE

How much of your day do you spend in worrying? Ten hours? Twelve? Fourteen? Is your worrying productive? Ask yourself these questions. Ask them now. DON'T PUT IT OFF.

Yes, let us face it. You worry.

By George Price

"My son has embezzled $200,000 . . . my business is on the rocks . . . I am charged with fraud

George Price, whose drawings illustrate this series, is the popular cartoonist of the New Yorker magazine.

The smallest thing can set you off—lack of food, the rent, a lapsed life insurance policy, a broken leg. You know it is silly and yet you cannot help yourself. You are one of those whom we at the Temple of Joy call "worriers."

The seat of worry is the pancreas. When you worry, your pancreas begins an oscillating motion. This oscillating motion increases the flow of adrenalin.

The flow of adrenalin attracts angry dogs. Angry dogs in themselves encourage worry. Thus a vicious circle has begun, and once begun, it would appear to have no end.

Once a wealthy entrepreneur came to me (you would recognize his name if I changed it), and said, "Foible Gompkin, I have followed your leadership in every respect. I meditate when you suggest meditation. I tap the energy all about me. In fact, last week alone I tapped 2000 kilowatt hours of energy, lighted my own house, and ran the electric toaster. Yet I am worried."

This obviously, was a serious case. The man was sober, a pillar of his community, and although he took a drop now and then he was certainly no toper. He had a charming Cadillac and two fine children.

"What," I asked him, "is worrying you?"

"Well," he began, "my son has embezzled $200,000 from a local bank. My business is on the rocks and I may have to file a bankruptcy petition. A competitor has charged me with fraud and is threatening criminal action. I have——"

"One moment," I said, raising my hand to stop him. "Have you ever thought how trivial our worries would seem if we looked at the universe about us, the whirling galaxies stretching to glorious infinity, the mysterious stars, and the quiet, brooding planets, millions and billions of light years away from this little spot of dust that we call earth?"

I did not expect an answer; I let him think and think deep. Then I said, "Don't give your worries elbow room. Fill your every waking moment so that you have time for anything but worry!"

He took my advice. When he found himself beginning to worry, he looked for a bottle-cap. In a short time he had amassed the most fabulous bottle-cap collection in the Western Hemisphere. More than one Prime Minister has visited his home to view his bottle-capiana.

This fascinating hobby has made him the sole possessor of the famous 1863 Busthead Beer bottle-cap, found in a state of desuetude on a Civil War battlefield.

Today that man is no longer what we call a "worrier." He is leading a Deliriously Happy Life. He has learned that living, living to the hilt, is more important than worrying.

Another case I want to mention is that of a formerly successful building contractor who had fallen upon hard times.

He was a highly logical person, not normally a "brooder." Yet he came to me and said he was worried. When I asked why, he replied, "I am six months behind in my rent."

I soon straightened him out.

"My friend," I said, "you tell me you are six months behind in your rent. I say you are worrying foolishly because you do not present the problem to yourself in its proper light. Did you ever consider that the landlord, not you, is six months behind in your rent?"

I will not soon forget the pressure of his hand and the moist eyes which gave me silent thanks as he left.

A half a year later I received a brief note from him which I have always treasured.

"Since speaking to you," he wrote, "I no longer worry, and my ketchup label collection is the envy of ketchup label collectors the world over."

His brief P. S. had almost an insouciant air as he wrote, "The landlord is now 12 months behind in my rent."

You, too, can stop being a "worrier." Say to yourself tonight, "I will not give my worries elbow room!"

When will you start to defeat your worries? Now or later?

I leave the answer to you.

Milt Back for Third Season Tomorrow

MILTON BERLE, returning to TV for his third season tomorrow night, may find his claim to the title "Mr. Television" widely disputed.

Almost everywhere faces new to television, but old-timers in radio and other fields, are showing up to offer competition for viewing honors. This is true not only on Berle's own network (NBC) but on other channels as well.

BERLE

Examples of the developing situation are to be found in the swing-over to TV of Eddie Cantor, Fred Allen, Groucho Marx, Jack Benny and Don Ameche. Also such talent as Ed Wynn, Alan Young, Kay Kyser and Arlene Francis, along with others who have had a year or more video experience, will be back to heighten the competition.

Berle's program, credited with having much to do with renewing interest in vaudeville, will continue for the same sponsor (Texaco). The Benny show still is in the offing, not due to open on CBS-TV until around October 29. Even then, Jack is to appear only once every eight weeks as he continues his weekly radio series.

ART LAMB, WTTG disk jockey, emerged from behind the stack of cards and letters that have been pouring into his office long enough to say, "Please, folks, stop spending money." The letters have been coming in from 10 different States.

The cause of this fan letter land-slide is the Red Foley recording of "Our Lady of Fatima" that Art Lamb has been plugging on his daytime TV show. It seems that listeners liking the recording have sent money hoping to purchase a copy of the platter.

LAMB

Lamb says he is unable to fill their requests and will return all money received. He suggests that anyone wanting a copy of the record contact his individual disk jockey for information on stores carrying the platter or Decca distributors in his area.

"Lamb sees "Our Lady of Fatima" as one of the most popular tunes written in recent years.

AT THE REQUEST of television set manufacturers, station WCBS-TV, New York, will transmit a color test pattern for one hour daily, from 10 to 11 a. m. Monday through Friday starting today and continuing to the end of September.

These transmissions of CBS field sequential color television signals will be made under experimental authorization of the Federal Communications Commission. A conventional home television receiver requires modification before it can receive these signals propely either in color or black and white. The set manufacturers will use the experimental transmissions for the purpose of testing such modification in their receivers.

The color pictures in the experimental transmissions will have a field frequency of 144 per second and a line repetition of 29,160 per second.

Careful Shopper Lends 'Woman's Touch' To Baseball

George Wilt of The Washington Post's promotion department has just returned from a visit to Philadelphia and, like the good newspaperman that he is, has brought back a story.

Those of us who remember the dreary years in which the "Futile Phillies" were perennially in the National League cellar will appreciate George's story best.

These days, the Phils are way out on top in the senior circuit, and give every indication of coasting to their first pennant since 1915. And the City of Brotherly Love has gone slightly daffy over the Whiz Kids, as a result. People who have never been inside a major league ballpark have suddenly become rabid fans.

George was waiting his turn in the Phil ticket office last week, while the clerk waited on a sweet young thing who was obviously shopping for her first baseball tickets. The conversation went like this:

Girl: Do you have any tickets for Sunday's doubleheader with Boston?

Clerk: Yes ma'am, we have some good seats left. How many do you want?

Girl: Two, please. Uh — where are they?

Clerk: Right behind first base.

Girl: Er — don't you have any behind second base?

BORDER PATROL

M. L. Le Mon, assistant communications chief for Eastern Air Lines, calls attention to a bad traffic situation on the "Virginia" end of Memorial Bridge.

"Virginia" is in quotation marks, incidentally, because the area in question is actually a part of the District of Columbia—something I never knew till now.

District Liner Le Mon says that if you cross the bridge during the morning rush hour, bear right with cars bound for Lee blvd., and then make a left turn to get to the airport—you're in trouble. Traffic is often backed up at that point, because it conflicts with Virginia autos coming from the other direction. "Can't they station a policeman there before somebody gets hurt?" asks Le Mon.

Inspector Mark Raspberry provides our answer, because this "Virginia" segment of the District is under the jurisdiction of the Park Police.

"We had some complaints about the area," he sighs, "so we stationed a policeman there to let each stream of traffic move in turn. People who were forced to stop complained.

"So we removed the policeman, and tried stop signs. Motorists who were forced to stop complained. So we tried big 'Slow' and 'Merging Traffic' signs. But now folks who get caught in a jam complain they want a policeman again.

"We can't please everybody, but I think that when men are available from our Police School about the first of the month, I'll put an officer back there again in the mornings.

"The only alternative is to block off that turn entirely, and let traffic go another fifth of a mile up toward Lee blvd., where the turn can be made with less trouble."

"Why don't you do that?" I asked, innocently.

"What?" murmured Inspector Raspberry, "and start getting complaints about making 'em drive farther."

And to think that when I was a little boy I hoped to grow up to be a policeman.

YOUNG AMERICA

Teen-agers, I discover, have their own private system of rating filling station operators.

I was about to turn in for gas the other day when my 14-year-old advised: "Not here, dad. Go down to the next station."

"Why?" I protested. "This station has the best gas."

"I know," he said, "but the fellow down the street patches our bike tires for nothing."

INCIDENTAL INTELLIGENCE

Jackson Schlesinger of 2807 Connecticut ave. nw. wonders whether we've noted that Small's (flowers) and Biggs (furniture) are on opposite sides of Connecticut ave.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

Senator Clyde Hoey's gracious demeanor and frock coat mark him as the kind of man you'd expect would dine in quiet splendor—probably by candlelight, in some exclusive club. I got quite a turn in the S. & W. (15th and G sts. nw.) the other day, watching him push his tray down a cafeteria line just like us poor people.

PIN MONEY

The coat you're wearing is an ode;
A sonnet bought your pants.
An article on "How Boys Grow"
Gave you the chance to dance.

I and I must get busy, son,
And set myself to write;
I noticed, as you went to bed,
Your shoes are such a sight.
Ruth H. Norris

POOR FELLOWS

"Before you went on vacation," writes Mrs. Richard H. Adams of 1002 10th st., Alexandria, Va., "you wondered why women never seem to be able to catch up with their work. Perhaps this will explain why:

"Rich men hire a valet, a maid, a housekeeper, a laundress and a cook. Poor men get married."

Yes, Mrs. Adams, and there are times when my heart goes out to all the poor men who have gotten married.

Close Ties Bind Truman To Marshall

By Drew Pearson

The close personal friendship existing between President Truman and Gen. George Marshall—amounting almost to hero-worship—was illustrated by an incident at Leesburg, Va., some time ago when General Marshall notified the President that a former United States Senator, killed in the Civil War, was inappropriately buried near Marshall's home.

Sen. Morse

The late Senator was Col. Edward D. Baker of Oregon, and General Marshall informed the President that only a moss-covered stone, overgrown with vegetation, marked his grave.

The President, who was in frequent touch with General Marshall even during his retirement, telephoned Senator Wayne Morse, Oregon Republican, and suggested that since Colonel Baker was from Oregon they both go to Leesburg, visit with General Marshall, and examine the grave.

Senator Morse accepted.. But before leaving, he took the trouble to ask the Library of Congress to check on the late Senator Baker, and found that although he had been killed at Ball's Bluff, Va., his body had been carried back to San Francisco and he was buried there.

Driving down to Leesburg, therefore, Senator Morse told President Truman that he was afraid General Marshall was mistaken about Senator Baker being buried at Leesburg.

The President's reaction was most interesting.

"Poor General Marshall," he said. "We mustn't hurt his feelings. You leave this to me."

After lunch, as Marshall escorted the party to the supposed grave of Senator Baker, Truman finally broke the news that he wasn't buried there after all. However, Marshall, unconvinced, led them to the grave, where they found that the Library of Congress was right.

General Marshall apologized profusely for bringing the President and Senator Morse on the long trip for nothing. But they told him they were delighted at the excuse to get away from Washington.

Wire-Tap Mystery

It looks as if Henry Grunewald, the long-missing mystery wire-tap witness, was headed for trouble. He has gone to extreme lengths in refusing to answer the questions of the Senate investigating subcommittee.

Grunewald is the wire-tap expert who at various times has worked for Pan American Airways, and whom Senators think was the go-between with Senator Brewster of Maine in tapping the wires of Howard Hughes, head of Trans-World Airlines and a rival of Pan American. Senator Brewster has admitted paying the hotel expenses of the Washington police lieutenant who tapped Hughes' phone, though he says the lieutenant was watching a man who was shadowing him.

Mrs. Frances Dustin, Brewster's secretary, shed further light on the matter by frankly admitting that Grunewald was a frequent caller at the Senator's office and that the Senator called him by his first name.

But when the Senate committee asked Grunewald how often he visited Senator Brewster's office, he refused to answer. Senators are now considering a contempt citation.

Thus the story which the Senate committee grually is piercing together looks something like this:

Senator Brewster in 1947 was chairman of the powerful Senate War Investigating Committee. He was also the bosom friend of Pan American Airways. Brewster and Pan American wanted Howard Hughes' TWA to consolidate its overseas lines with Pan Am. This Hughes refused to do. Whereupon Brewster investigated Hughes, and during the period when he was before Brewster's Senate committee, Hughes' telephone wire and that of his attorneys were tapped, apparently under the off-stage direction of Henry Grunewald, who admits that at various times he checked telephone wires for Pan American Airways.

Under FBI's Nose

It takes a brazen thief to steal right under the nose of the FBI. However, one was caught the other day pilfering nickels from a news vendor's box at the entrance of the FBI's offices.

The thief was caught when the FBI, dyed nickels in the change box a wet green, and hid two FBI clerks behind ventilator slats in a nearby door.

After a short wait, the hidden clerks heard stealthy footsteps coming down the corridor, then the jingle of change taken from the newspaper box. All they could see from the ventilator shaft, however, was a pair of dark blue pants.

So, crawling from their hiding place, they ordered all the blue-uniformed guards to report for inspection. One guard was missing. They found him in the lavatory washing green dye from his hands.

Flies Invade City

LUCERA, Italy, Sept. 17 (U.P.)—Hordes of flies invaded this southern Italian city today, and officials of the Zoo Technical Institute said they came from North Africa.

It was believed the flies were carried across the Mediterranean by the "Sirocco"—a hot wind from the Sahara which reaches as far as northern Italy.
